AXIS FOLDING UNDER CAP BON TRIPLE FIRE

Prisoner Toll Swells Hourly as British Close Neck on Escape Peninsula.

ity and said the cornered enemy apparently had recognized the futility of attempting to get away, while huge fires blazing along the roads of the bomb-riddled cape indicated the Germans already were burning their supplies.

More than 5,000 prisoners were taken by the British in their lightning thrust across the peninsula, including 600 members of the crack Hermann Goering regiment which had fought strongly around Hamman Lif from entrenched and buried tanks. This unit appeared to have lost its nerve along with other units who were surrendering in companies even though their ammunition and supplies were not yet exhausted.

Captured along with the flood of prisoners were messages of encouragement sent to the front lines by both Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

The Nazis had attempted to stop the British drive by using their tanks, drained of fuel, as fortresses, but when the British renewed their deadly assault yesterday morning, opposition cracked and the armor of Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson swept through to the south coast area with but little difficulty.

The tanks reached Soliman, 10 miles southeast of Hamman Lif, by 2 p. m., swept on to Grombalia, six miles to the south, by 5 p. m., and by 8:30 p. m. were within six miles of Hammamet.

This peace-time resort town is astride the coastal road on the south side of Cap Bon. Its capture cut off the remaining first line troops who were fighting the British eighth army and the 19th French corps to the south and west from the supply units and communication personnel who had retreated into the peninsula's mountains.

(British officers on the Cap Bon front estimated three days ago that 80,000 Axis troops had reached the peninsula.)

There was no let up, however, in the stubborn resistance of the southern Nazi forces. At one point they even put in a counter-attack against French forces. It was repulsed.

The Eighth army made an attack against the die-hard German fighters southeast of Saouaf, 12 12 miles northwest of Enfidaville, and took 75 prisoners and 12 small field guns.

The French, fighting alongside the British Eighth army, mopped up, a number of small pockets in the neighborhood of Zaghouan.

So completely blotted out was the German air force in this theater that just one enemy plane was seen in the Tunisian sky. It was shot down.

The naval section of the communique said five small boats were sunk off Cap Bon yesterday and Sunday night in mopping up the detachments caught at sea, and said many prisoners had been captured. Among them was a German general caught trying to escape. That made seven generals captured.

The Allied air forces sent over 100 medium bombers to smash Pantellaria Island airfield, [illegible] miles off Cap Bon, for the fifth time in three days, while a strong force of Flying Fortresses hammered the airfields of Milo and Borizzo in Sicily.

Malta's squadrons of fighter-bombers and bombers assailed Biscari, Marsala and Port Empedocle in Sicily, unloading bombs on airfields, railway stations and power stations. Four-engined RAF planes delivered the second important attack on Messina, in Sicily, in 24 hours.

So nearly knocked out is Pantellaria air base that only one enemy aircraft came up to meet the bombers. It was an Italian plane and, after seeing the size of the formation, the pilot decided to keep out of the way.

A small feet of landing craft and dock installations also were attacked here. A violent explosion amidst the jetties and warehouses was seen by the departing bombers after they were 10 miles away.

Light bombers and fighter-bombers maintained a round the clock strafing of roads and a few small boats. Night flying Hurricanes caught motor traffic in the path of their flares and other airmen fiercely bombed the airfields at Kourba, Menzel Temime and Cap Ras Addar at the extreme northern tip of the cape where a number of Junkers transports were wrecked.

In typical sweeps, a Spitfire wrecked two staff cars, six trucks and a trailer on the road north of Hammamet while a Hurricane shot up a small boat containing 10 Germans who had no oars and only a shirt for a sail.

"Again great damage was inflicted on the enemy and many vehicles were destroyed," the Allied command said.

The air field, docks and shipping at Pantelleria island, and air fields in Sicily also were heavily attacked, it was announced.

The docks and other targets at Palermo, north shore Sicilian port, were bombed again by a fleet of Wellingtons Sunday night, following up the punishing Sunday daylight raid by 400 American bombers, the last largest single aerial operation in the history of Mediterranean warfare.

The attack on Pantelleria was the third successive heavy raid on the island by the African air forces.

The advance upon Hammamet came after a complete break-through in the Hamman Lif area on the north side of the peninsula during the day and the advance had carried almost to the southern shore by evening.

The capture of Grombalia and Soliman put the British deep in the heart of the peninsula and in the position of cutting off the north and south road serving the Axis forces on the east coast, the only retreat path for the Axis forces faced by the Eighth army.

Headquarters said that naval activity off the coast was intense and that "the coast is closely watched and blockaded and the work continues of mopping-up small parties of the enemy striving to escape by sea."

In the air activity, the Allied air forces lost five planes and brought down four enemy planes yesterday and two Sunday night, the communique said.

(The Italian communique, broadcast by the Rome radio, was quick to acknowledge the latest Axis setback. It said that Allied forces had reached the southeast coast of the Cap Bon peninsula and that British Eighth army attacks continued in the south, but claimed that violent Axis counter-attacks had nullified the Allied gains in the latter sector.)

(The Italians also said Allied planes raided Trapani and Porto Empedocle in Sicily and Pantelleria island, and that seven big bombers were shot down. Two more big bombers and eight fighters also were shot down by German fighters south of Sicily, it was claimed. The communique asserted that Axis planes bombed Algiers and Gabes.

(The German radio, quoting Berlin military quarters, said the Allies had made a "deep dent" in German defenses in the western part of the Cap Bon bridgehead and the official communique acknowledged that Axis soldiers were suffering "very great hardships" after weeks of incessant fighting.)

"Heavy fighting is continued with undiminished violence involving losses on both sides," said the communique

(The communique paid tribute to the 15th armored division commanded by Maj. Gen. Boroweitz and the anti-aircraft division commanded by Maj. Gen. Heuffer without mentioning that these two generals with most of their forces had surrendered, and to the 90th light infantry division commanded by Lieut. Gen. Count Sponeck.)

The Second U. S. corps, its part in the campaign declared completed, counted and fed its 25,000 prisoners in northern Tunisia.

Heavy Bombers Hit Sicilian Port

CAIRO — (AP) — RAF heavy bombers attacked defense installations at Messina, Sicily, on Sunday night and followed up with raids on enemy shipping in the Aegean sea yesterday, a Middle East air communique announced today.

No details were given on the Messina assault, but the shipping attacks were said to have left two small sailing vessels in sinking condition.

All planes were reported to have returned safely.

The RAF attack on Messina was the second Allied air blow at that important communications center within 24 hours. A Cairo communique yesterday announced that United States heavy bombers had raided the town in daylight Sunday.

Sanduskian Sees Nazis Surrender

WITH THE U. S. ARMY IN TUNISIA — (AP) — Corp. Alvin Sharp, Sandusky, O., is probably the most envied enlisted man in the United States Army.

As orderly to the American general who accepted the unconditional surrender of the German African corps Sunday, the Ohioan had a grandstand seat for the war's most thrilling show to date.

But the capture of 25,000 Nazis did not phase Corporal Sharp While the prisoners were being herded into a hastily-constructed bull pen in a Tunisian wheat field, he was found in the field kitchen, calmly eating a late-luncheon snack.

Bares 1,200 British Tunisian Casualties

LONDON — (AP) — Clement R. Attlee, deputy prime minister, told the house of commons today Britain's First army had suffered 1,200 casualties in the final stage of the advance on Tunis and Bizerte and a total of 8,400 since April 17.

The Eighth army's casualties from April 20 to May 3 were just over 2,400 including wounded and missing, he said.

Allies Resume Air Pounding of Europe

LONDON — (AP) — Big formations of Allied bombers and fighters resumed daylight smashes at the continent today after a weather-bound week-end

The raiders began streaming back across the channel from the direction of Boulogne shortly after noon. It was a fine sunny morning for bombing, but the sky was overcast in the afternoon.

German Bombs Kill 16 In East Anglia

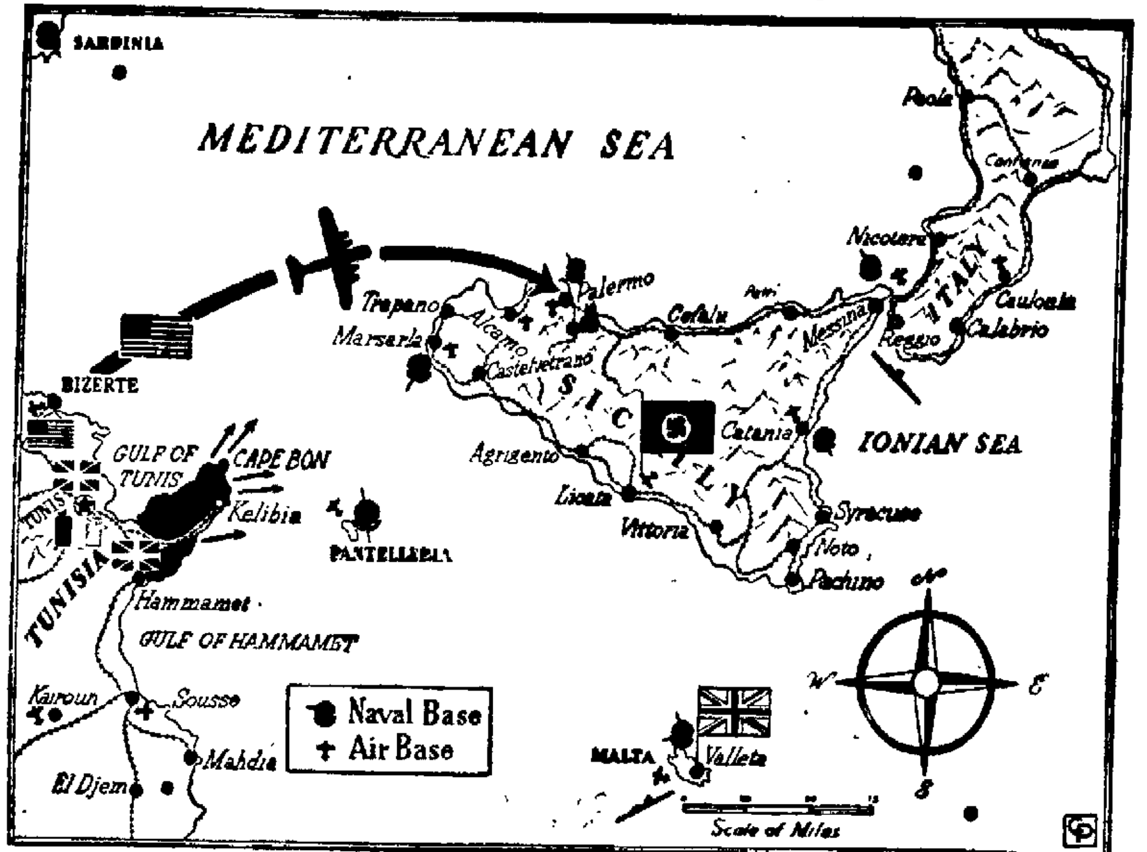
LONDON — (AP) — Sixteen persons were killed in an East Anglian coast town today when German planes bombed a building housing girl members of the Auxiliary Territorial service.

The building was demolished and it was feared that there were other casualties

Fifteen Focke Wulf fighter-bombers attacked the town this morning, bombing the residential section and machine gunning the streets.

A search was under way for other ATS girls known to have been in the building.

Allied Planes Blast Sicily, Trapped Enemy



While trapped enemy troops on the Cape Bon peninsula try a minor "Dunkirk," indicated by small arrows on above, map. Allied planes pound them from the air, British troops close in behind them and Allied naval vessels shell them from the sea. Meanwhile, 400 American Flying Fortresses blasted Palermo, Sicily, in a daylight raid and other American bombers struck Messina.

Admits Jap Planes Technically Weaker

(By Associated Press)

Lieut. Gen. Ashinari Uchida, in a Tokyo broadcast reported by the OWI, admitted today that the Japanese air force is inferior in technical knowledge, but claimed Japanese "spiritual strength" is superior to that of the Americans

The OWI identified Gen. Uchida as director of the aeronautical affairs section of the military aviation.

Gen. Uchida, appealing for greater efforts in war production, said Japan must attack the American mainland by air. He said the Pacific war, which he termed the "unparalleled war of years," would soon enter the critical phase to determine whether Japan would "eat or be eaten."

Ohio City Faces Dropping of August Primary.

LIMA — (UP) — Lima today was confronted with a manpower shortage of its own — politically speaking. Because of a dearth of candidates, Lima may not hold a primary election in August.

If not more than two candidates file for office, all candidates will be certified for the November election and a special one-mill garbage collection levy scheduled for vote in August will be postponed.

The terms of mayor, councilman-at-large, auditor, city solicitor and six councilmen expire this year.

ed in "a 135-day period starting this week," Dixon said, which would call for completion of the project by Sept. 15. Additional contracts may be let at that time, however.

Because of the temporary nature of the work, Dixon said his company, which has eight other governmental projects under construction in seven states, was urging new employes to refrain from bringing wives and families for residence here. He stressed, too, that the company anticipates no employment of migrant workers since they are confident the manpower of the area will be adequate to meet their needs.

Employment offices have been established temporarily, Dixon said, in the lower floor of the Shelby Inn, where employes will be signed to work six nine-hour days regularly with additional overtime if necessary.

Routzon was optimistic about meeting Dixon's request for rooms, expressing the belief that parents would rally to the call by renting the rooms temporarily vacated by their sons in service.

having difficulty to explain the affair."

The Bern Der Bund said that the American fighting ability, which "had not been held highly" by Berlin, came as a shock to all Axis military leaders, and Europe's neutral press praised the Allied leadership and men.

Hitler's Axis partners seemed convinced that a new Allied blow was in the making.

Virginio Gayda, writing in the Giornale D'Italia, was quoted by the Berlin radio last night as saying that the Axis "has prepared plans of defense which will become known when the time has come."

Rumanian Premier Ion Antonescu was quoted as saying in a Budapest dispatch that his country already has lost half a million men in Russia, including the prisoners, but faces still greater sacrifices.

The present disposition of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's Eighth army was seen here as probably one of the Axis leader's chief worries. It is known that some of the best units were pulled from the Ain Hallouf area in Tunisia and sent to join the First army in the attack on Tunis. If Hitler knew whether the remainder of the Eighth was still in the Ain Hallouf area or had been withdrawn to the rear for regrouping and preparation for a new stroke, he might know the answer to the riddle of where the United Nations will strike next.

Aneta, Netherlands news agency, reported today that Nazi occupation authorities had executed 26 Dutch patriots on May 2 for fomenting strikes and sabotage. The agency said it had received dispatches from Stockholm saying 10 additional Dutchmen had been given the death sentence.

Aneta said the executions followed immediately on the issuance of the Nazi decree ordering all former Netherlands army members to report to the authorities for reinternment as prisoners of war.

A Reuters dispatch today quoted the Budapest radio in Hungary as announcing there had been a discontinuance of telephone communications between Turkey and Bulgaria.

Store Observes Its 7th Anniversary With Sales Event

As a part of its seventh anniversary celebration, the Kobacker store will open tomorrow at noon and remain open until 9 p. m., W. L. Faulkner, manager, said today.

"We are having the anniversary sale this year as usual in spite of war limitations on merchandise because we feel that it will be only fair to our customers," Faulkner said.

Other anniversary plans include a brunch at 10:30 a. m. at the Isaly store on North Main, where the 75 employes will be eaterntained. Tables are to be decorated with flowers and seven birthday cakes.

The Kobacker store first opened in Mansfield in 1936 at its present location. Since that time, it has grown with new departments being added from time to time to increase the scope of merchandise. In addition to the moderately priced goods which have made the store popular, all departments have added nationally advertised style lines to make a wider appeal.

Store windows have been newly decorated for the anniversary sale.

The Germans have thrown their summer reserves into the battle for the Kuban bridgehead in the western Caucasus and have made repeated counter attacks with support of armor in an effort to halt the Red army advance, according to word received here. The Russians broke up all the attacks.

Soviet fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns broke up an attack by 200 German planes on the Rostov-Bataisk district Sunday, shooting down 43 enemy planes while losing three of their own. The German bombs did slight damage in the area through which traffic into the Caucasus flows.

VICTORY OPENS NEW SEA ROUTE

Knox Says Axis Plane Can't Stop Use of Mediterranean By Allied Ships.

tory will eventually open the Mediterranean and reduce the distance United Nations supply ships must travel to the Arabian gulf area by about 5,000 miles.

"It will nearly double the tonnage that can go through (to the middle east) if we have an air umbrella," Knox said.

Asked if German planes on the European continent and the islands Sicily and Crete would be able to prevent use of the Mediterranean route, Knox replied: "German planes will attempt it, undoubtedly, but they won't be able to prevent it."

Knox said that Axis possession of airfields on Sicily and Crete increase the dangers of the Mediterranean route.

"Possession of Sicily by the Allies obviously would be a tremendous asset," he said. "So would possession of all the northern coast of the Mediterranean."

To further questions dealing with the Mediterranean route and the possibility of Allied seizure of Sicily and Crete, Knox replied, "Now you're dealing in terms that might suggest our future plans."

Knox was questioned about a report that Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, commander of the 14th army air force in China, expected to be able to bomb Japanese cities from China by this fall. He replied, "That's pure speculation."

Knox opened his press conference by saying:

"My only comment to start with is to attempt to express, on behalf of the navy, congratulations to the army on the magnificent victory in Tunisia, and also to the British navy and to the American and British air forces for the effectiveness with which they cut off supplies to the enemy.

"One reason the Germans assigned for their prompt surrender was exhaustion of their ammunition supplies, which is a tribute to the effectiveness of the blockade."

American Troops Reported Stationed at Cyprus Island

AXIS FEARS MOVE AGAINST 'SOUTH DOOR'

Hitler Reported Feverishly Rushing Fortifications on Europe's Underside.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Reports that American troops have been stationed on Cyprus island at the eastern end of the Mediterranean circulated through invasion-conscious Europe today as speculation increased that the Allies were getting ready to move against Axis-held islands guarding the southern approach to the continent.

Swedish press reports from Sofia, via Berlin, said that the Stars and Stripes were flying beside the British Union Jack from Cyprus public buildings and that American military, political and economic experts were aiding in administration of the island.

An American general who commands a division and his staff were said to have arrived at Nicosia, the island's capital. These reports said that the Americans began arriving on Cyprus two months ago, presumably as part of the invasion plan.

Word reaching Madrid from Italy and France told of the intensified preparations by the Axis to fortify Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica and southern Italy against invasion.

Thousands of laborers were pouring cement for anti-tank ditches, machine gun emplacements and air raid shelters in Italy, it was said. The work, started in December, was being rushed to completion because of the Axis collapse in Tunisia.

It was suggested that recent heavy Allied bombings of the whole Mediterranean area were designed partly to weaken these defenses.

Adolf Hitler gave an idea of conditions among the Nazi fighting men in his appeal for Red Cross funds yesterday. He asserted that "the homeland cannot assess how great has been the physical and moral demands" upon the troops. He indicated that conditions had been especially bad on the Russian front.

NAZIS HUMBLED IN DUST OF A PANICKY ROUT

Leave Vast Stores Behind In Defeat Described as Worse Than Dunkirk.

Further on a lieutenant colonel formally accepted the surrender of a German major and all his surviving junior officers and men. Military police clambered into a captured German half-track troop carrier and escorted a column of 200 toward the rear.

"Would you like to ride?" asked the colonel politely.

"Thank you," the major replied in good English. "But I should prefer to march with my men."

The German command obviously had hoped to stall off the British at Hamman Lif, a picturesque Moslem village on the plain a half mile wide between the hills and the sparkling Mediterranean.

Sherman tanks swept through this gap nine miles southeast of Tunis in a ten-hour battle yesterday, outflanking a line of German 88's by sending one squadron along the sandy beach.

It was strictly an armored show: No British infantry was used today.

This morning the armored advance guard swept forward nine to 13 miles as the enemy defense collapsed in a mad rout.

Huge stocks of military supplies were found untouched in the warehouses of big vineyards near Grombalia and Soliman. In their frantic haste the enemy failed to blow up any bridge or to lay a single mine.

Large parking lots filled with undamaged enemy vehicles are scattered in the fields and the hills to the right of the main highway.

Fields and orchards are dotted with the personal baggage cast off by the fleeing Germans.

Many mobile 88 guns have been abandoned but usually only after their breeches were smashed by explosive charges.

Refugees and carts piled high with bedclothes and pots and pans were returning to their shell-pitted homes.

A black-bereted general who was studying his maps in the turret of a Sherman parked on a steep and rocky hill above acres of green vines told me: "It's all over, there isn't going to be any Axis Dunkirk. A few tough chaps are still fighting, but most of the enemy is now giving in."

It had been a hot morning, drenched with African sunshine, and the hungry general was just about to eat his biscuit spread with peanut butter.

The wireless in a tank began sputtering and I could hear the cool, Oxonian accent of some squadron leader reporting from his patrol.

"Quite an interesting story here, sir," the voice said. "We have met a British soldier who was captured and disarmed last night. This morning, he says, the Germans gave him back his rifle. Now he is here with 200 Germans who surrendered to him."

Captured Nazis Betray Italians

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Three German soldiers captured in Tunisia on Saturday were so chagrined by their fate, the war department disclosed today, that they betrayed 90 Italian troops to their captors.

The story was told in a report from 1st Lieut. John A. Carey of Newport News, Va., U. S. fighter pilot.

While moving in to attack argets in the forward area on Saturday, Carey's plane was damaged by flak. He managed land, dazed by the jolting he received. Seeing three German soldiers nearby, he started running. At a bend in the road, however, he met three British soldiers on a gun carrier. They captured the three Germans.

From the once-proud Hermann Goering regiment, the Germans were pretty exasperated.

"Just a little way beyond this hill you'll find a lot of Italians," they told their captors. "Go and get them."

The British and Carey, armed with a British Tommy gun, followed the Germans' advice. They found 90 Italians, took them prisoner and took the lot to Tunis.

State Conservation Official Talks To Rotarians.

Conservation is no more than "the wise use of what God put on earth for us," explained A. W. Sroht, of Columbus, at today's meeting of the Rotary club, held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

As chief of the game group of the Ohio division for conservation of natural resources, Short placed emphasis on the close interlinking of forestry, soil and water conservation with preservation and restoration of game and fish.

He also made reference to Boy Scout training and activities as valuable to the conservation program and expressed belief that the greatest of all conservation is found in proper upbringing of children.

"You may not know," he said, "that Richland county has one of the cleanest records in the state in the matter of juvenile goor behavior, and much of this can be traced to development and support of the Boy Scout organization and the excellence of its leadership."

Charles H. Hughes was program chairman of the meeting, at which Harry B. Soulen, club president, presided.

CITY FINDS LITTLE INTEREST IN BIDS FOR CARS, JAIL MEALS

City officials had found today that Mansfield automobile agencies apparently are not looking for new car business and restaurant proprietors don't want the job of delivering meals to city jail inmates.

Only one bid was submitted on a police cruiser the city wants to buy and there was only one offer from a restaurant on the jail meal service.

The Mohican Chevrolet agency submitted a $1,168 bid on a new cruiser and offered $550 for the city's used police car.

Harry Becker, proprietor of an East Fourth street restaurant, said he would provide the jail meals at 25 cents each if the city transports the food from his restaurant to the jail.

The city has been paying only 13 and a third cents per meal. For more than a week city prisoners have been boarded at the county jail because there was no one to supply food at the city prison.

Other bids were opened yesterday on 12 sewer manholes and 12 fire hydrants. Lone bidder on the sewer materials was the R. O. Darling company, Mansfield, at $2,100.

Two Pennsylvania firms bid on the fire hydrants, the Darling Valves Manufacturing company of Williamsport submitting a bid for $1,426 and the Rensselaer Valve company of Pittsburgh, offering to sell the hydrants for $1,356.

Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff said no date had been set for letting the contracts, and he wasn't sure that the city wants to assume the responsibility of transporting the jail meals to the city building.

DEM LEADERS IN BITTER FIGHT ON PATRONAGE

Challenge State Chairman To Deliver More Federal Jobs To Ohio By July 1.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The leadership of State Democratic Chairman Darrell S. Jones was challenged today by the party's county bosses who gave Jones until July 1 to "deliver the goods" in the form of more federal jobs for the organization's faithful.

The challenge was hurled yesterday at a surprise meeting of county chairmen at which Jones was accused of supporting Wendell Willkie for president against Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1940.

The unexpected gathering was called by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson. It came shortly before Jones was to meet the county chieftains in a regularly-scheduled conference on yesterday's Washington banquet program.

Jones and members of the party's federal patronage committee — National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, National Committeewoman Mildred Jester and State Central Committee Chairman Al Horstman — were summoned to explain the patronage situation. All but Sawyer responded.

Answering Ferguson's charges that "too many Republicans"—were getting the "good" jobs in the state, Jones asserted he was meeting obstacles and promised to have things rolling "smoothly" within four or five weeks.

Ferguson demanded to know why Birkett L. Williams, a Republican, was permitted to hold the $8,000-a-year job of regional office of price administrator.

Jones admitted he had discussed Williams' job with Prentiss M. Brown, OPA administrator, but said he had given his word not to divulge what was going to happen.

The meeting reached a climax when John Nolan, Jefferson county Democratic boss, joined Ferguson in accusing the national committe of failing to obtain patronage.

Nolan asserted that Jones "has done nothing" the past eight months, and added:

"I don't think Darrell will ever be able to secure patronage for Ohio. I was told in Washington that you (Jones) had followed George White and supported Wendell Willkie."

(After the meeting, Jones told newsmen he considered Nolan's charges "too ridiculous to answer.")

The county chairmen suggested that a committee to confer in Washington be named, but Ferguson explained the national committee recognized only Sawyer, Mrs. Jaster and Horstman in matters of patronage.

John A. Schwalm, Butler county chairman, moved that the state chairman be given until July to "deliver the goods." Schwalm's motion was carried.

No decision was reached as to what might follow if the chairmen decided Jones failed to "deliver the goods," but Ferguson said later that he would call another meeting.

Richland county's Democratic organization was not officially represented at the meeting. Neither Frank Cave, executive committee chairman, nor Frank C. Long, central committee chairman, attended.

Proposal Lifting Sewer Rentals To Go Before Council

council to remove the sewer charge.

Porch said Mayor W. J. Locke had suggested at least twice in recent months that the council finance committee bring the proposed suspension to council for a vote, but no action had been taken because members of council believed the city would have a use for the sewer funds if building and repair materials were available.

"Because it appears now that we won't be able to carry out some of the projects we were considering, there's no reason now why the taxpayers shouldn't get the benefit of the tax reduction," Porch said.

If council votes to suspend the charge for the last half of the year, property owners will save approximately $25,000, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley estimated.

AN APPLE FOR EVE --

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1943)

CHAPTER V

For the first few dazed weeks, when everything she had ever known had been swept away from her and everything about her was new and strange, Loveday lived much in the pleasant bedroom of the mother of the family. Fanny was taken up with the wedding plans and brought them all, with engagement presents, dress samples, fashion magazines, announcement lists, into her mother's apartment for endless consultations. Rod came in for a few minutes every morning and evening. Warren St. George was usually there when he was at home. But there were quiet midday hours when Loveday and her hostess had the house to themselves, and at those times Loveday was happiest.

Mrs. St. George, despite her semi-invalided condition, was an active worker in a dozen different causes and had many private charities as well. In the pleasant foggy mornings they worked away busily at desk and telephone, and at these times Laura St. George chatted away easily about her husband and children; Loveday was enabled to see through her pleasant gossip a hundred phases of her new family and their lives that might have been much longer a mystery to her. The mother's pride in them, her old nursery anxieties, the problems that Fanny, Rodney, and Nini had presented in turn were absorbing interest to Loveday; sometimes her "Aunt Laura" would laugh at the serious face with which she considered them.

There was an older son, of course, Chris. Loveday remembered Chris. He was the big brother who with such superb efficiency and strength and general grown-up superiority had lifted her down from the shed roof upon which the teasing other children had stranded her when she had been a frightened little girl. Evidently magnificence was still the attribute of Chris.

Chris, in his family's eyes, was different from everybody else in the world. Nobody was ever so successful or so handsome or so clever or so funny as Chris. At the State University in Berkeley he had carried all literary honors casually; almost, Loveday suspected, disdainfully. He had gone on to Harvard for a post-graduate course in letters, somewhat to his father's uneasiness.

"But before that year was over Chris had sold his play," his mother told Loveday in quiet triumph. "That answered Dad's misgivings as to his being an idler—playing with writing."

"Chris was how old then?"

"Twenty-four."

"Imagine it! And did you all go on to see the play?" Loveday demanded at this point.

"No. I don't know," Mrs. St. George said thoughtfully, "that we realized at the time exactly how important that was, what an extraordinary thing for a boy of his age to do. It was only afterward, when they made him a member of clubs, when he went to the London opening, that we realized that our duckling was a swan."

It was said with a gentle laugh of motherly pride. Loveday's eyes were glowing.

"He was married then?"

"Oh yes." Was there the slightest flagging in tone, the least possible flagging of enthusiasm? Loveday fancied she perceived it sometimes when Merle was mentioned.

But the St. Georges were loyal. Merle was Christopher's wife; by that circumstance alone she was above criticism.

Rodney, Loveday thought, must be entirely eclipsed by the brilliant older brother. Rodney was as nice as he could be, but dull. Little excitable Marc Villard was much more amusing than Rodney, and Larry Ingersoll far exceeded him in magnetism and force.

"How nice things can happen!" Marc said enthusiastically one day when he and Loveday were walking on the windy cliffs.

"Like what, Marc?"

"Like—well, you are not there, and then you are there, and we are all in love with you! We are rich before, but the thing happens and we are richer."

"You say that so nicely! But I can't quite imagine what I would have done if Uncle Warren hadn't come to me when Mother died."

"But what else can he do? We are at breakfast when your telegram arrives. 'My God, that child! Owen's child,' he says, and within an hour he is off. And Fanny and Rod, they follow, and then they bring you here. And believe me, you do us all good and are beloved."

She laughed, although tears were in her eyes.

"You're all just overwhelmingly good to me. But it's the way you put things, Marc. 'You are beloved'."

"Well, are you not?"

"I hope I am."

"Then how would you say it?"

"I suppose I'd have said, 'They all like you'."

"My English!" he said ruefully.

"Your English is simply amazing. If I could ever speak French like that! Did you speak it when you were quite small?"

"Yes, I think so. I was born only three years before the great war, you know, and shifted about from pllace to place. We were of Lorraine. I can remember moving from some place—they were driving cows, I know—"

"Oh, what a terrible memory!"

"Then someone telling me that it was peace, and horns blowing, and my nurse crying with her apron over her eyes—and the ship—we were on a ship."

"Coming to America?"

"To China. And we must have gone back, for I remember India again, and riding on a camel, and then Paris. And I was fifteen before we came to America to live."

"Your father and mother had you through all this?"

"No, they were dead. There were many of us, I suppose—small children whose lives were completely broken up. And then a kind American lady took charge of me, sent me to college and to medical college, et voila! And I come to San Francisco just in time to meet the lovely Miss Gurney."

"I thought," Loveday said, laughing at him through a veil of blown hair, "that the St. Georges were being especially kind to me, and I was afraid it wouldn't last. But now I see that they're that way to everyone. They're just—that sort."

"And Rodney will be more than kind to you when you will let him," Marc said seriously, catching her elbow so that he might steady her—or rather that they might steady each other against the wind. Her color rushed up; after a moment she said:

"Rod knows that I am engaged to Lawrence Ingersoll."

"But you know when you love a person, Loveday, you don't believe that!" Marc said eagerly and apologetically.

"Well, but he must believe it!" she said with a hint of impatience. "Not—not that I think it goes very deep with Rod," Loveday added, quickening her step to join Fanny, who was waiting for them in the shelter of a clump of windblown pines, "but if it is going to make him unhappy it will make me unhappy too!"

"I'll tell you who it will make very unhappy," Marc said. "Aunt Laura."

"Oh, but she has no right to feel that way!" Loveday said, distressed. "She knew — I told Uncle Warren; I told them all, one time or another, just how it was."

"I know. But she is very fond of you, ma cherie."

"And I'm so fond of them, all of them! How could it be any other way! Only—a promise is a promise," Loveday argued.

U. S. Cargo Planes Carry 90 Tons To India, Set Record

AT A UNITED STATES BASE IN INDIA, May 8—(Delayed)—(U.P.)—The longest and largest mass transport flight in history has been completed by American commercial pilots flying America's newest and biggest cargo planes.

They flew from the United States to India in 4½ days without loss, carrying 90 tons of cargo 15,000 miles. The 90 tons was not the maximum cargo possible for the twin-engined planes and much of it will be used for future maintenance of the ships.

Arrival of the planes was cheered here as a concrete step toward fulfillment of President Roosevelt's promise to provide this theater with more material for heavier blows against Japan.

The Curtiss company, which built the planes, provided Lieut. Col. W. C. Goldsborough of Dover, Del., U. S. army, retired, as project engineer, while the planes were flown by pilots of Northwest Airlines and Trancontinental and Western Air.

Transformation.

A henna job and a permanent wave finished the job of turning Laird Cregar from a sophisticated actor into a grizzly, hard-bitten prospector for his role in 20th Century-Fox's new technicolor musical, "Hello, Frisco, Hello." Laird's bulk (he tips the scale at 240) was all right, but the part called for a hard, tough looking face. So he was given a fierce red beard and then his hair was dyed to match the beard. A permanent wave machine finished the job of making his hair look as violent as the beard. Cregar is fresh from his role in "The Black Swan," and critics say he turns in a fine performance in "Hello, Frisco, Hello." The picture is now at the Ohio.

Love and War.

From the world's least known war front, China, comes one of the most exciting movie stories of the year, Paramount's "Night Plane From Chungking." The stars are Robert Preston and Ellen Drew. The picture, opening tomorrow at the Madison, is a tale of romance and adventure with two Americans, an airplane pilot and a Red Cross nurse, as the principal characters. Its locale is that Japanese threatened China's lifeline, the Assam road that winds from Chungking to the borders of India, route of thousands of munition-laden trucks moving up to the front lines. The action throws together an ill assorted lot of travelers, each trying to carry out some sinister mission. Jinx Falkenburg stars in the co-attraction, "She Has What It Takes."

The Real Thing.

Vestments worn by H. B. Warner in cathedral scenes and cassock worn on the street in his role as the bishop in "Hitler's Children," now showing at the Park, are more than 400 years old. They are the property of Rev. Msgr. Dwyer, Los Angeles. Warner's role as the bishop is one of the most impressive characterizations of the picture. The elderly bishop defies Naziism without fear. "Laugh Your Blues Away," starring Bert Gordon ("the Mad Russian") is the co-feature.

33 YEAR RECORD

KINGSTON, N. Y.—(U.P.)—The war was responsible recently for breaking a record of more than 34 years of perfect Sunday school attendance for Alfred R. Finley of this city. Finley, a defense plant worker, missed his first Sunday since Jan. 1, 1909, when pressure of war orders caused him to remain at work. He is now superintendent of the Sunday school in which he started as a young boy.

CIRCUS COMES TO CITY MAY 21, WILL HELP SALE OF WAR BONDS

Circus day will roll into Mansfield Friday, May 21 and like most everything else it will strike a war-time note.

Nearly 400 tickets for the two performances of Cole Bros. circus will be given away to war bond buyers. They're going like hot-cakes now and by the time the deadline is reached all of them will be sold, war bond officials said.

Special sections for both the matinee and evening performances are being reserved for bond purchasers with the best seats going to those who buy bonds of the highest denomination. Performances will be at the fairground.

A menagerie filled with wild animals from every clime and nearly 400 men and women arenic stars are traveling with the show this year, advance notices said. Bareback riders, aerialists, tight-wire stars, and a host of clowns are included in the array under the gaily colored big top of indigo blue canvas said to be one of the most decorative circus tents.

As a prelude to this year's performances, an unusual spectacle in song entitled, "The Conquest of Coronado," is presented with hundreds of performers and animals taking part.

The performances will be given at 3 and 8 p. m. with the main gates opening one hour earlier in each instance allowing inspection of the menagerie.

Radio Industry Visions Miracles In War Output

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—The radio manufacturing industry, which achieved new engineering and production miracles in 1942, looks toward further technical progress in 1943, it was reported by James T. Buckley, president of the Philco corporation.

In peacetime Philco was the largest producer of civilian radio receivers and a leading factor in the refrigeration and air conditioning industries. The company, now 100 per cent converted to war work, is turning out radio equipment for planes, ships and tanks, shells, fuses and industrial storage batteries for the army and navy.

Output today already is considerably higher than ever before in the company's history and should expand further in coming months, according to Buckley.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MAY 11, 1943.

There seems to be a shortage of workers—until you notice the number of applicants for a political job.

Most unpopular of beautiful flowers, the "taraxacum officinale" is starting to show its golden head. It's better known, of course, as the dandelion.

A 14-year-old Italian immigrant boy, who started by knowing no English, won in the spelling contest in the Detroit area—revealing, among other things, that spelling is still being taught in some parts of the country.

African Success First Big Step

SUCCESS of the Allied forces in North Africa, after sufficient military strength had been built up to accomplish what proved to be no easy task, gives an idea of what must yet be done before victory is achieved.

The North African campaign was carried through at high cost in men and materiel, and it is gradually being better realized in this country that war losses in killed, wounded and captured cannot be confined to one side and that America must be prepared to hear of many casualties resulting from the bitter struggle that has been in progress in Tunisia.

It should also be understood that this is the beginning, rather than the end, of actual offensive action against the Nazi stronghold of Europe, which Hitler has been working desperately to defend against assured invasion.

Three years have passed since Hitler's once unbeatable panzar forces overran Belgium, France and the Netherlands, which were ill-prepared to meet the onslaught.

Even Great Britain was not ready for any such show of military might by Nazi Germany, and it was only Russia that had the admirable foresight to be in at least partial readiness to meet Hitler's ambitious but ill-fated thrust in that direction.

It required Pearl Harbor, Bataan and Corregidor to arouse many Americans to appreciation of national danger and to begin belated preparations for defensive and offensive action.

Now these preparations, in training men and producing war equipment, are beginning to bear fruit, as evidenced by the growing power of the Allies and the dwindling strength of the Axis nations.

But the war is still far from being won and even such a great achievement as driving the Axis out of Africa should have no other effect than to provide incentive to greater military and civilian efforts to hasten the "unconditional surrender" which must precede final victory for the United Nations.

Monday's Work Will Be Needed

MEMORIAL DAY and the Fourth of July will be on Sunday this year. Customary procedure, under ordinary conditions, is to observe a Sunday holiday on Monday.

But conditions this year are so far from "normal" that the idea of devoting Monday, May 31 and Monday, July 5 to holiday observance seems out of accord with the constantly emphasized program of full-speed production to meet war needs.

Except in rare individual cases the two-day suspension of business services also appears out of keeping with wartime requirements.

Memorial day is especially fitted to Sunday observance and changed attitude toward Fourth of July observance, with elimination of fireworks and other explosives, also brings this national holiday within proper bounds of Sunday commemoration.

There is the further matter of travel restrictions making week-end vacation trips impracticable for the coming holidays—so why not treat the Mondays following Memorial day and Fourth of July as regular work days instead of as holidays?

Speeding the Way To 'Culture'

THIS is an age of hustle, of doing things quickly in order to get speedy results. Sometimes this hurry does not work so well, as when a man tries to save time by bolting his food.

The idea of hurrying has lately been applied to getting culture while you wait by boiling down the classics. A Dickens digest has just been prepared, purporting to give the best of him in short space. Read this book, is the suggestion, and you can cross Dickens off your list. The plan is next to be tried with the novel that some consider the finest in the world, Victor Hugo's French masterpiece, "Les Miserables."

But this scheme doesn't work satisfactorily. The trouble is not with its execution, which is as good as could be hoped for, but with its fundamental basis. It is like suggesting that the layman can get the best of Beethoven or Brahms by a few selected bars, or by a piece from which difficult passages have been ironed out. Any person with even the simplest knowledge of music knows that this never works.

Lend-Lease Food for Allies

PROPORTION of food sent the Allies seems to be rising a little. Last year only one-fifth of a pound of beef out of every hundred went abroad; this year during the first three months one pound went out of every hundred. Much more lamb and mutton went in that period—18 pounds per hundred—than last year. Supplies of pork sent were slightly higher. There was a little less butter, fats and oils, but more dried eggs, dried peas, beans and fruits.

If these supplies can get safely to their destinations, all will be well. Americans can get along with less of such foods, and they will do much good to the people to whom they are consigned. The great trouble is that so much is sunk by submarines. We lose it and the other folks do not get it.

Guard Against Civilian Dangers

THE COINCIDENCE of two Mansfield men receiving fatal injuries from falls, within a 27-hour period, gives tragic emphasis to the constant presence of unsuspected dangers which must be guarded against if injury or death is to be avoided.

Hazards of war are recognized, and properly dreaded, but the common-place dangers of home and community life are customarily ignored.

Eternal vigilance is not only the "price of liberty"—it is also the price of safety from preventable accidents.

When and How to Display Flag

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Decoration day is just around the corner. That means everyone who has a flag should display it on that day.

What I'm wondering is whether everyone knows that congress has laid down the law about displaying, saluting and honoring the flag.

For example, if Decoration day is rainy, too windy or otherwise affected by "inclement weather," the flag should not be flown at all; and that until noon on that day, it should be flown at half mast. That last law is probably violated more often than any other in the whole flag code.

Decoration day is just one of several when the flag is to be flown. According to law, just as important days are New Year's, Inauguration day, Lincoln's birthday, Washington's birthday, Army day, Easter Sunday, Mother's day, Flag day, Independence day, Labor day, Constitution day, Columbus day, Navy day, Armistice day, Thanksgiving and Christmas—plus any other days that the president shall designate—and all state birthdays and holidays.

THERE is a score of other regulations. The U. S flag can't be draped around a float, for instance.

Most interesting, however, is the fact that the old flag salute for civilians—raising the right arm to parallel the brow, with the palm open—is no longer good form, or even permissible. That, says congress, is too much like the Fascist and Nazi salutes. The Shickelgrubers swiped it from us, therefore we will no longer have any part of it.

Just what will happen to you if you don't obey these laws is NOTHING, except that you had better not try to look your neighbors in the face. Congress has provided no penalties, but if you consistently violate this statute, watch out for the FBI. J. Edgar Hoover's boys will want to know why.

THERE'S a story going around here that the British have already formed two post-war plans: (1) If the United States really strings along in determining global peace policies; (2) If it doesn't. That should give the "nationalists"—as they now call themselves — food for thought, but no less food than the "internationalists" have to chew on. The question is simply whether we will have the Versailles treaty all over again—or something better.

ONE of Washington's favorite yarns for the moment is about the fellow who took his car in for inspection. His brakes, lights, tires, etc., were okayed. He started to drive out to the place where he would get his "okay" windshield stamp. His motor conked out; his car caught fire. Attendants rushed out with fire extinguishers but found they wouldn't work (not having been inspected, we presume.)

The fire department finally arrived; sprayed the charred wreckage and departed. The owner was sadly investigating salvage possibilities when up marched the inspector and slapped a sticker on at heat-cracked windshield. It said: "Inspected and approved."

Listen World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Love Is Many Things

LOVE doesn't "just happen." It is not a miraculous visitation—a superhuman seizure—an instantaneous explosion.

Love starts happening when we start living—long before we find the loved one. Love is an answer—love is many answers. Love is the answer to countless fears, fevers and frustrations, hopes and hungers, ecstasies and surrenders. Love is the answer to all we are—and aren't; have achieved — and haven't.

Love—the conscious awakening—comes when we are ready for it to come. But it is a long time getting ready.

We say "I love"! And we think these two words always mean the same thing. No matter how we may differ in character, in intelligence, in taste and experience, we think that "love" is always the same thing . . . a beautiful and noble thing . . . always deserving reverence . . . always meriting gratitude.

But that's idiotic. Love isn't always the same thing. Love is never the same thing—not even in the same person! Love is not necessarily beautiful, or noble; or even excusable. Love is as good as the individual who feels it—and no better. Love is—what-are-you and what-have-you.

Love may be a prayer—a song—a blessing. Or it may be a coward's hideaway . . . an egotist's sounding board . . . a sentimental alibi . . . a glutton's greedy snatch. Love is sometimes a glorious partnership—but, far oftener, a habit which we are too lazy or timid to break. And sometimes a drawn-out spite contest.

Jealousy has no place in love—no justification. Nor has meddling, nor possessive domineering. These things are cancerous growths on the body of love which will surely destroy it. "Charity covers a multitude of sins"—but love camouflages a whole hell full.

Real love is the noblest opportunity in life, the most gallant adventure, the most consecrated service, the sweetest comfort . . . our closest pact with God. But most of us expect it to be a toe-dance with jazz accompaniment, or a continuous solo broadcast. And quit when we find it isn't.

There is no discipline as stern as the discipline of love, no isolation as complete, no monotony as wearing, no sacrifices as cruel.

It is the most civilized of all our performances. And because it is, the best of us can work at it but for short periods only. But work at it we must, if we would achieve it.

Love is not the "greatest thing in life." Life is the greatest thing in life. Beware of love that cries that "life is well lost"—and of a "perfectly happy" marriage that shuts life away. And therein lies that certain test of love which we are always craving. Does love make you braver, more honest, more eager to live? Does it make you willing to face those challenges you have hitherto dodged—accept those burdens you have hitherto shirked?

And will the loved one face those challenges with you, share those burdens, and despise you if you try to escape? Then it is love—REALLY! And worth anything it costs.

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MUSHROOMS FOR BREAKFAST

OUR slope has produced tasty food since the first of May. One early morning when the fog hung in misty zones across the meadows, and the dew was heavy on the hill, I walked cautiously up with the small egg basket in my hand. I knew, from vivid experience of the last three years, that warm rain, fresh dewy morning and sunshine had brought the mushrooms above the drab moist leaves.

I was not disappointed. Before I was half way up, I noticed a pair of dark gray, bluntly pointed heads breaking the bonds of earthy mould and rising proudly into the light of day.

They were the edible, cone-shaped, sponge mushrooms that grow abundantly about our woodland. I looked for more and found three large ones, standing four inches tall. The large delicate stems were smoothly rounded like a pillar holding up a burden. I walked closer and admired the structure and symmetry of this strange, yet familiar, woodsy plant. The rough appearing surface of the cone was cool, soft and moist, like liverwort. With some regret, I seized the top with thumb and finger and the tender, hollow stem broke near the dark woods dirt.

Breakfast time was near, so I plucked four more I had noticed later, and threw them into my basket. Farther up, I found more growing, but not so large as those I had first found. I partially filled my basket and hurried down, leaving many to be gathered another time.

My wife was waiting to see what luck I had. She was not surprised, for this has happened every spring. Quickly I immersed them in spring water and drained and split them while she simmered butter in the iron skillet. Soon savory odors tantalized my nostrils and filled the kitchen like an incense.

We ate a leisurely breakfast, just we two, while the children slept. (That's the kind of folks we are . . . they will have some, later.)

Mushrooms of this particular type are quite rare. They say the older generation used to find them here by bushel basketfuls. They do not get so large as they did years ago, it is said. I never saw more than two dozen fine big mushrooms, like these together in my life. Perhaps the fading woodlands will cause them to disappear entirely.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington Insiders Quite Sure There Will Be No Coal Stoppage

WASHINGTON—You can mark it down as definite that the coal mines will remain open for the duration.

John L. Lewis will not resume the strike when his 15-day "truce" with the operators expires.

At the same time, don't be surprised if there is no real settlement of the coal wage dispute in the form of a new contract between Lewis and the operators.

This may sound like a paradox, for the mine labor boss has stated repeatedly that members of his union won't "trespass" on the property of the operators unless they have a contract. However, to insiders who have been close to the coal crisis from the beginning the answer is obvious:

Lewis is willing for Interior Secretary Harold Ickes to continue as czar of the nation's coal mines after the 15-day truce expires, in which case the mines still would be the property of the government.

When Ickes, in his capacity as solid fuels administrator, announced last Tuesday, two days after a long conference with Lewis, that he was retaining control until the "coal business is a going concern," he meant until he was assured of continued production—or for the duration, if necessary.

While Ickes didn't say so, he assumed that Lewis might not sign a new contract with the operators while the War Labor Board had jurisdiction of the case. This has been borne out by developments since.

Doesn't Like WLB.

THE mine labor boss not only has refused to negotiate with the War Labor Board, which he suspects of being prejudiced against the miners, but he and his advisers have decided privately to sign no contract with the operators as long as the WLB has jurisdiction.

Lewis would rather take his chances with Ickes, who has shown no great love for mine operators in the past and who already has made two concessions to the miners since taking over—a guaranteed six-day work week and a promise to clean up profiteering by operator-owned commissary stores.

Also, Lewis would like nothing better than to hold the WLB up to public ridicule for failing to settle the coal strike. This, apparently, is part of his strategy, since he knows that Ickes will be compelled to retain control of the mines, whether the interior secretary likes it or not, if there is no settlement.

At th end of the 15-day truce period, the mine labor leader can tell Ickes in effect:

"We will not continue work if you turn the mines back to the operators, since the United Mine Workers traditionally do not work unless they have a contract. However, we cannot strike against the government."

May Keep Control.

SO ICKES will have no other recourse than to retain control of the mines if he wants to keep them in production.

Just how much more Lewis can expect to get from Ickes, in addition to the concessions he has received, is problematical. The interior secretary already is wavering a little under heavy pressure from White House advisers James Byrnes and Harry Hopkins and WLB Chairman William H. Davis.

Inside fact is that Davis, under the urging of his associates, called on Ickes shortly after the 15-day truce was announced and told him flatly that he and his whole board would resign unless they were allowed to resume negotiations for a settlement of the mine dispute.

Davis was blazing mad about news stories that the WLB had been "by-passed" and that Ickes himself would endeavor to achieve a compromise settlement. There will be official denials, but these stories hit very close to the mark.

While Ickes made no definite commitments to Lewis, he indicated that he would play an active role in effecting an agreement satisfactory to the miners, the operators, and, most important of all, to the nation.

However, rather than provoke an open fight with the War Labor Board, Ickes subsequently agreed with Davis to step completely out of the picture and later announced to a press conference that he would not intervene personally to get the miners and operators to resume collective bargaining talks.

On the other hand, he will not relinquish the mines if there is any likelihood of a strike—and this holds good for the duration.

No Poultry Rationing.

A MONTH ago, the poultry section of OPA was urging rationing of poultry. But today the tune is changed. A lot of things have happened, including a telephone call from a woman who raises chickens in nearby Virginia.

She had heard of the poultry rationing proposal, and she telephoned the OPA, said she wanted to speak to somebody about it.

"I am just a small producer," she said, "with about 200 chickens. But I am already so confused by all this red tape of rationing this and rationing that, that I believe if there was poultry rationing now, on top of everything, I would just sell out my chickens and quit."

Officials admit that this and many similar views were factors in their switch. They are afraid of driving small producers out of business. Another factor is the difficulty of controlling distribution of a product which is handled over the back fence. As it stands now, rationing of poultry is out.

Note: An increase of 22 per cent is expected in poultry production this year, though last year's output was unusually heavy. The big question mark now is whether there will be enough feed to take care of all the country's chickens.

WAR NOTES

Ambassador Litvinoff's mission to Moscow may be final. There is about one chance in three that he will return. Seldom does a man who has fallen so far from favor as Litvinoff with Stalen return permanently to power . . . Military experts believe Germany is pressing Finland to join a military offensive against Leningrad . . . Baron Mannerheim left Finland for Switzerland in the nick of time. If he had stayed much longer, and if Finland collaborates fully with Germany as now appears likely, he would have been killed by Finnish opponents of collaboration.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

Wounded Soldiers Endure Pain Quietly; Captured Nazis Wonder What's Coming Next.

NORTHERN TUNISIA—(By Wireless)—Just after daylight on the first morning of the battle that I recently sat in on as an awed semi-participant, wounded men and German prisoners began coming back down the hill to us.

They didn't have far to come—the less seriously wounded could walk back down in five minutes. We were that close.

About an hour after daylight I noticed that a man on one of the stretchers coming toward us had on a British officer's cap. I had a hunch, and ran over to look closely. Sure enough, it was my tentmate of the previous three nights—a British captain.

When I ran up, the litter-bearers put down the stretcher, and I kneeled down beside it. As I did so the captain opened his eyes. He smiled and said, "Oh, hello, hello. I was worrying about you. Are you all right?"

How's that for British breeding?

I started to say something about being sorry, but before I could get a word out he said:

"Oh, it's nothing at all, absolutely nothing. Just a little flesh wound. It isn't as though I'd been hit in the spine or anything."

But the captain had a big hole in his back, and his left arm was all shot up. They had given him morphine and he wasn't in much pain. His shirt was off, but he still wore his pistol and his cap as he lay there. There was blood all over his undershirt. His tanned face had a pale look, but his expression was the same as usual.

Our first aid station was too much under fire for ambulances or any vehicles to be brought up, so four litter-bearers still had to carry the captain a mile and a half back to the rear. When he heard this he said: "That's perfectly ridiculous, carrying me that far. They'll do no such thing. I can walk back.'

The doctor said no, it would start him bleeding again if he got up. But the captain got halfway off the litter and I had to give him a push and a few cusswords before he would consent to being carried.

The captain was a young fellow, sort of pugilistic-looking but with a gentle manner and an Oxford accent. He had been in the British Eighth army two years without getting hurt. He had just joined us as a liaison officer, and was shot in the first half-hour of his first battle.

We'd had nice talks in our tent about England and the war and everything. It seemed impossible that some one I'd known and liked and who had seemed so whole and hearty such a few hours before could now be torn and helpless. But there he was.

A FEW minutes later two German prisoners came down the hill, with a doughboy behind them making dangerous motions at their behinds with his bayonet.

The captor was a straight American of the drawling hillbilly type, who talked through his nose. I'm sorry I didn't get his name. When he walked the Germans back to his sergeant he said, in his tobacco-patch twang:

"Hey Sarge, here's two uv Hitler's supermen fer yuh."

The two prisoners were young and looked very well fed. Their uniforms were loose-fitting khaki, sort of like men's beach suits at home. With their guns and all their other soldier gear taken away, they had the appearance of being half-dressed. The expression on their faces was one of wondering what came next.

They were turned over to another soldier, who marched them across the fields to the rear. I couldn't help grinning as I watched, for the new guardian stayed well behind them and walked as though he were treading on ice.

OUR aid station was merely a formation of outcropping rocks on the hillside. The wounded all stopped there to await new litter-bearers to carry them on back.

The battalion surgeon, Capt. Robert Peterman of Hicksville, L. I., had remarked earlier how our wounded never groaned or made a fuss when they came in, so I paid special attention. And it is true that they just lie on their stretchers, docile and patient, waiting for the medics to do whatever they can.

Some of them had been given morphine and were dopey. Some smoked and talked as though nothing much had happened. A good many had been hit in their behind by flying fragments from shells. The medics there on the battlefield would either cut the seat out of their trousers or else slide their pants down, to treat the wounds, and they'd be put on stretchers that way, lying face down. It was almost funny to see so many men coming down the hill with the white skin of their behinds gleaming against the dark background of brown uniforms and green grass.

Some of the boys who were not too badly wounded seemed to have an expression of relief on their faces. I know how they felt, and I don't blame them.

I remember from the last war the famous English phrase of "going back to Blighty"—meaning being evacuated to England because of wounds. In this war we have a different expression for the same thing. It is "catching the white boat" meaning the white hospital ship that takes wounded men back across the Atlantic.

Hints on Etiquette.

When daughter brings home a new boy friend, father and mother should be on hand to meet and greet him, chat a short time and then fade out of the picture.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I obeyed my father's command and sat down, as he went to the outer door.

"Oh, come in, Adams!" he said and the door had no sooner closed again than Adams began to speak in low, hurried tones.

"I met Dixon," he said. "He is on his way up to see you, but I told him to wait a block or two away. No use letting anybody around here suspect that we know each other."

"You are right." my father said "How long before Dixon gets here?"

"Probably five minutes," Adams replied, and my father looked at me

"Is there anything to keep you from remaining here for—say a quarter of an hour?" he asked.

"Nothing," I replied promptly, "except that I should like to go in and tell Katharine I shall be away that long."

News For Katharine.

Then I hurried into the bedroom where I had left Katharine.

"Well, dear?" she asked, "any news?"

"The best," I told her. "Father has consented to your going down to the hideaway and remaining with Jack a few days.

"But you must remember," I said, "that you cannot leave here until the affair of Ruth Hayes is settled"

"Yes, I know that," she said dully, "but surely I can wait a day or two, after these long years of doubt."

"Just keep that in mind," I said, "and now, I must go back for a quarter of an hour, so try to get some sleep."

"I will," she promised, and I went back. Adams and my father rose at my entrance, but did not have time to reseat themselves before a knock sounded on the outer door.

"That will be Dixon now, I'm thinking," Adams said, and at my father's "Let him in," Adams opened the door, revealing a young, well-built and rather nattily dressed man, who looked straight at my father.

"I was on my way up to see you, sir," he said, "when Adams told me you had sent him to get me."

"Sit down," my father said, and Adams pushed forward a chair, "I want a full report on the Hayes woman up to the last hour"

Dodged By Ruth Hayes.

Dixon began to read from a sheaf of notes a monotonous record of following Ruth Hayes for several days, from the time she emerged from her apartment hotel to the restaurant where she took her breakfasts, to the time when, late at night, she returned and came out no more until morning

"Saunders took over, as you know, each night, at that point," Dixon said, "and watched until I came on again, early in the morning.

"Yes, I know," my father said. "Go on!" and Dixon brought his account up to the preceding afternoon just before Ruth Hayes' visit to Hal Meredith's office.

"I tailed her to this apartment house," he said, giving an address two blocks away from Hal Meredith's office, "and stayed in front of it until she came out an hour later,"

"And right there is where she fooled you completely," my father said.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PROCEED AT YOUR PERIL

Partners who are prone to open the bidding in third position, with anything at all, and sometimes nothing, put a terrific burden of guesswork on you. If you know you have such a gambler opposite you, it is incumbent upon you to be very gingerly about anything you do, especially about making a business double of some later bid by your opponents Don't count on that partner to furnish his full amount of defensive strength, in helping you beat the contract.

North: ♠ 10 8 7 3 ♥ A 9 7 2 ♦ J 10 6 5 ♣ 2

West: ♠ A K 6 5 4 2 ♥ K J 8 3 ♦ 8 ♣ K J

East: ♠ Q J 9 ♥ Q 5 ♦ A Q 7 4 3 ♣ 9 8 3

South: ♠ None ♥ 10 6 4 ♦ K 9 2 ♣ A Q 10 7 6 5 4

(Dealer. North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Dbl

Wouldn't you hate to be in the position of South, after he heard his partner double that contract? He certainly didn't like to leave it in, but he didn't dare to take out to 5-Clubs, for fear the punishment would be too great. Actually, he probably would have gone down a couple of tricks doubled, and thus saved points, if he had made the sacrifice, but he couldn't feel sure of it.

North made his obvious defense opening the singleton of his partner's clubs. South won and returned the club 7, which North ruffed Wishing to get his partner back into the lead, North lay down the heart A to see what kind of signal he would receive, but it was a small card, the 4. Hoping this left his partner with a now singletin heart K, he led a second heart. West was now in, and he had no trouble taking the rest of the tricks to make his doubled contract.

South's flukey opening bid, to try to mislead his opponents, cost his side exactly the number of points handed over by the double, 120.

Tomorrow's Lesson.

North: ♠ K 6 5 3 ♥ A K 2 ♦ 6 5 3 ♣ 7 6 3

West: ♠ 10 ♥ Q 8 7 6 3 ♦ A 8 7 ♣ A 10 4 2

East: ♠ 8 7 ♥ 10 9 5 ♦ K 9 4 2 ♣ K 9 8 5

South: ♠ A Q J 9 4 2 ♥ J 4 ♦ Q J 10 ♣ Q J

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

Why is it sound bridge for South to play a low card from the dummy when West leads the heart 6 against his 4-Spades?

It's patriotic to fish. So, if your Victory garden proves a flop, at least you'll know what to do with the worms your spade turned up.

DECLARES U. S. INDUCTEES TOO COMPLACENT

Maj. Gen. Scott Says New Men Won't Come Out of Peace Ti . Rut.

(By Associated Press)

FORT KNOX, Ky.—Major General Charles L. Scott, commanding general of the replacement training center at this birthplace of the nation's armored forces, says that American men, when they enter the army, are "too damned complacent" and think the war is boy scout stuff.

He told a group of 23 news correspondents making a transcontinental tour of army installations that under intensive training, including use of live ammunition in battle tactics, "the intelligent ones soon snap out of it, but there are some who won't come out of their peace-time ruts until they're actually bombed."

Stating that the condition was general with newcomers to army posts throughout the country — "they're just like the majority of the American people—too damned complacent"—the white haired veteran of 43 years of army service said that this has been his own experience:

"All have a tendency towards complacency, but out of a group say, of 1,000 men, you have to really go to town on 25 per cent.

"These include men lacking in education, those who were neglected at home, those who never went to church, and men who never held any particular job. The smart ones soon realize that they're going into battle and that they're in a killing business."

General Scott, who experienced five months of the Libyan campaign as senior military observer in the middle east war for the United States, said our weapons were in all cases equal and in most cases superior to the enemy's, but he cautioned against underestimating the ability of the foe.

"If we get licked," he said, "it would not be by weapons but by brains."

"We are making a great mistake if we underestimate the enemy, in the case of the Italians, for example: those I saw were good fighters—smart, well - equipped, cunning and ruthless.

"The enemy has taught us that we must kill without compunction and possibly get a little fun out of it."

He said all new men at Fort Knox were given training designed to toughen them up and give them a taste of what battle is like, and he added:

"We run 'em around in the woods, and when they get a little dopey, we set a mine off. We send 'em out at night and have a few well-trained men push 'em around a bit. I don't think you can overemphasize physical condition and discipline."

And he said that his warning to the men to "stay on the job and be a good soldier so you won't get killed on the battlefield" had had these results:

"We've reduced our venereal disease rate 75 per cent in six months — away below that in many civilian communities. And, absences without leave are less than one-half of one per cent."

The general spoke after the newsmen had witnessed striking examples of the armored forces' tests of both men and machines to prepare them for combat.

OFFICER 'LIKES U. S. VERY MUCH'

CLEVELAND (U.P.) — Good will between Brazil and the U. S. has been getting a lot of promoting in this city since the arrival of Chief Petty Officer Joao Martins of the Brazilian navy.

Chief Martins, taking a special course in the Lincoln Electric Welding school, has unwittingly become an ambassador without portfolio.

"Good morning," Martins says upon entering the classroom, then he clicks his heels together and bows from the waist. After this preliminary, he goes about the room, shaking hands with everyone. Martins repeats the performance each night before he goes home.

"I like America," Martins explains. "I like — I like very much — everybody."

SELLS FAST

CHUNGKING, China (U.P.) — The placing on sale here of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's new book, "China's Destiny," caused a two-hour traffic jam. All streets leading to the one book store where it was placed on sale were so filled with anxious buyers, ranging from public functionaries to laborers, that traffic had to be routed by other streets. The same thing is happening in other Chinese cities, where it is being released as fast as the publishers can provide enough copies.

SETS RECORD

PITTSFIELD, Mass. — (U.P.) — Every Pittsfield man who has joined the armed services has said good-by to David J. Moran.

Moran, who is the mayor's secretary, hasn't missed one send-off for Pittsfield residents at the local railroad station. He estimates that he has distributed 3,000 tins of cigarets as the city's farewell gift.

MEET WEDNESDAY

MILLERSBURG — Hardy Grange will meet Wednesday evening in the D. of A. hall to celebrate the ninth anniversary of the grange with a covered dish supper.

Gets Commission

Recently commissioned a second lieutenant in the army nurse corps, Mary Catherine Dalton, shown above, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Dalton, 187 Vennum avenue, has been assigned to duty at the post hospital at Camp Breckenridge, Ky. A graduate of St. Peter's Catholic high school and St. Vincent Charity hospital school of nursing, Lieut. Dalton was employed at Mansfield General hospital prior to entering the service. She has two brothers, Sgt. Robert F. Dalton in Australia, and Pvt. William J. Dalton stationed in Georgia.

ENUMERATOR HIRED

WILLARD—Mrs. Bess Wallace has been hired by the board of education to take the school enumeration and will begin the work this week.

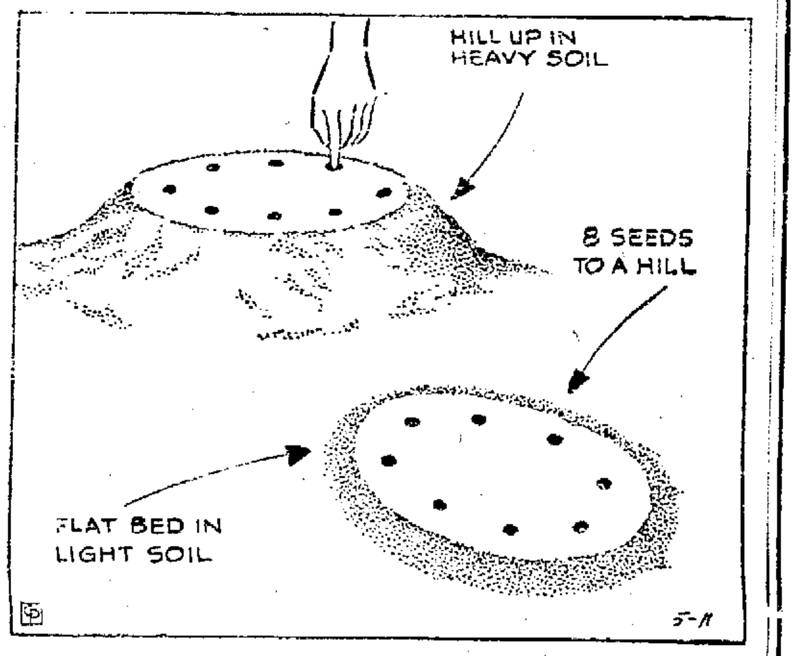
TAKES HOLIDAY

PORTLAND, Ore.—(U.P.)—When this British sailor had a holiday, what did he do? Take a boat ride? No sir, he sat down and played the bass trombone in the Portland junior symphony at its regular concert.

The sailor, Eric Cross of Worthing, Sussex, England, before the war played with the amateur symphony in his home town.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Planting Squashes In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Ass'n.)

Squashes are a tender crop and the seeds of the various varieties should not be planted in the Victory garden until the weather is warm and settled. When squash seeds are planted in cold ground they are more likely to rot than to sprout. The foliage of young squash plants is every tender and susceptible to freezing.

Methods of planting squash seeds in hills is illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Reference to "hills" does not necessarily mean a mound of soil, for under certain conditions it can also mean a level seed bed. It is advisable, however, to use the mound system where the soil is heavy and drainage may be poor. In light soils, where the drainage is good, level culture is recommended. Squashes should not be planted in an area of the garden that is low and wet.

Each hill that is to be planted to squashes should be dug out to the depth of six or eight inches. A shovelful of manure should then be placed in the bottom of the hill and mixed with some of the topsoil. Then spread another layer of soil two to three inches thick. Place the seeds one inch deep and eight seeds to a hill, as illustrated. Later when the plants have attained their third or fourth leaves thin out the plants, leaving only two to four the strongest in each hill.

The bush varieties of squashes are planted in hills four feet apart each way. Runner varieties are planted eight feet apart each way.

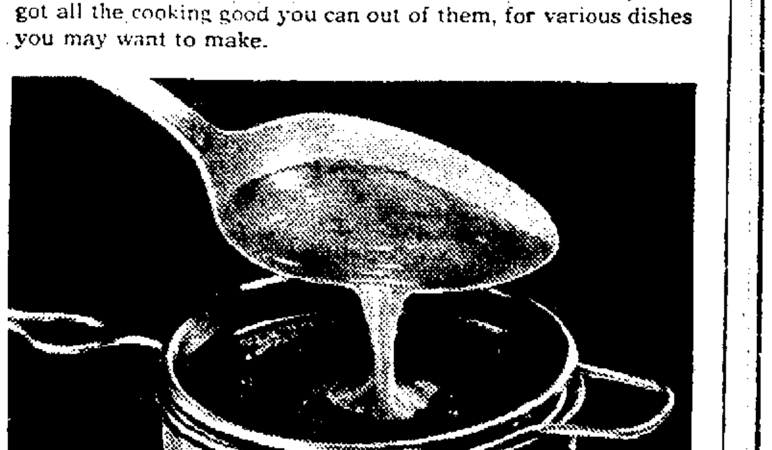
WHAT TO DO WITH FATS DURING RATIONING

FIRST—Save every drop from pan drippings, gravy skimmings, etc., to use again in your cooking. The government has asked for fats to make gunpowder—but it doesn't want them until you've got all the cooking good you can out of them, for various dishes you may want to make.



THEN—When all the cooking good is gone, don't throw your used fats away. They're desperately needed for gunpowder. Every little bit counts. Just one tablespoon will fire five machine gun bullets. Even with rationing, you can save that much every day. Keep it in a can. Rush each canful to your meat dealer.

JAIL WOMAN IN FATAL STABBING

Police Claim She Confesses Plunging Paring Knife Into Victim's Chest.

prosecutor and Police Chief Meade K. Bates revealed Wilson, Miss King, Willie Garland, 40, and Mrs. Clara Truly, 39, all of whom lived in the same house, had visited beer parlors in the city yesterday afternoon and that Wilson and Miss King had started an argument then. Witnesses said, however, that the couple had been arguing for two weeks.

Chief Bates learned Miss King was angry because Wilson had been working only part time and had failed to pay his share of the expenses at the home

The investigation revealed, however, that Wilson may have been jealous of Miss King because of her alleged attentions to other men, police said.

Broken bricks, pieces of a wooden box, and a smashed ketchup bottle outside the house where Wilson was stabbed indicated that a fight had been in progress before Wilson was stabbed, O'Donnell said

The acting prosecutor quoted Miss King as saying she grabbed the knife from the kitchen sink and stabbed Wilson as he approached her with a brick in his hand There was only one wound in the victim's chest. The knife entered the right side of the chest and penetrated the heart, according to Acting Coroner Blake Kohler.

Garland and Mrs. Truly were held last night at the county jail as material witnesses, but were released early today after questioning Miss King is in the county jail

Both Wilson and Miss King recently served 30 days in the county jail and had been cited a number of times by police, court records show. Wilson was released from jail in March after serving a sentence for assault and battery, while Miss King was freed last month. She was imprisoned for petty larceny. She had been arrested previously for assault and battery and intoxication.

Wilson served a workhouse term in 1935 for the illegal possession of liquor and at other times was arrested for grand larceny and intoxication.

Wilson's body was taken to the Geiger Funeral home. Funeral arrangements were incomplete today Surviving are his mother, Mrs Mary Day, a brother James Hogan and a sister, Mrs. Anna Seybold, all of Mansfield.

In addition to the $1.65 buyers must pay 10 per cent federal excise tax, as well as local sales taxes, if any. Hard sleepers though reportedly have paid as high as $9 for alarm clocks because of the acute shortage.

Still coyly hiding backstage somewhere, 100,000 of the war-model clocks, with revised steel innards to save brass, have definitely been made, the War Production Board revealed, but the date of their public appearance remains in the unspecified future.

IN THE CAPITAL--

By Raymond Clapper

STOCKHOLM—(By Wireless)—Conditions here will be considerably eased by the action of Germany in agreeing to permit resumption of limited ship movements under safe conduct through her blockade. Next will come discussions among Sweden, Britain and the United States as to what may move through our blockade into Sweden.

Twelve Swedish ships, all or partly loaded are ready to come in. They should begin arriving in about two weeks. They will be the first since early January. They are bringing fodder, cotton, rice, and oilcake, all badly needed.

Clapper

Incidentally, one ship is bringing raw American movie film, which has been the subject of much anxiety here. Swedish movie interests are out of raw film. Germany offered to supply them on condition that they show Nazi instead of American films. Now Swedish movie interests can print up American films, including "The Moon Is Down," because Swedish audiences go for Allied films, especially American, rather than for Nazi pictures.

The hit plays, books and films are anti-Nazi, or strictly American—such as "Gone With the Wind."

Not much is said about it, but oil is the big thing in resumption of sea traffic. The Swedish navy is running low on reserves. I spent a day with the Swedish Baltic fleet, and learned that maneuvers and training are on inadequate scale due to the necessity of conserving fuel for emergency.

Another tipoff on the real situation here is the fact that American journalists were allowed to visit restricted areas not before opened to any foreign correspondent.

We rode on new, spectacular motor torpedo boats, built here. We cruised at 40 knots, sometimes we made nearly 50—and the engines still were not fully open. They carry two torpedoes, also 20-millimeter anti-aircraft guns. Sweden has built at least 16 and has more under construction. We saw part of the submarine fleet, which has at least 25, plus more under construction. Those are the two chief elements of Swedish naval strength. Her cruisers, or coast defense ships, carry four 11-inch guns; they are over age and of little practical use except as floating anti-aircraft carriers.

But the submarines and motor torpedo boats are useful to protect Sweden against water invasion, as the natural barriers of the archipelago form a natural defense.

Oil, however, is essential, and none is obtainable except from America. Our government has been cautious about releasing oil. It is not a question of tankers, as Sweden has her own, but of the advisability of such a policy. Our war department strongly questions the advisability. The U. S. state department takes rather a milder view. The whole attitude of Washington has been under reconsideration recently in preparation for new discussions with the Swedes shortly.

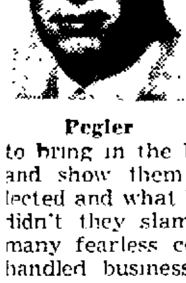
It is difficult for one so new here to size up these complicated considerations. Every day I gather new evidence of Swedish friendliness for the United States. We would not have been shown such restricted military activities as they have opened to us, unless that friendship were genuine. Sweden must have some oil to keep her military establishment going. Civilian needs do not figure much, as charcoal wood burners are used to run automobiles and even many military vehicles.

The question, however, is whether we would want any considerable accumulation of stores here. Because, while the Swedes might resist with everything they have, they would hardly last very long if the Nazis went all out against them. But nothing of that kind seems imminent.

FAIR ENOUGH--

By Westbrook Pegler

TUCSON, Ariz.—At this point, while the Truman committee of the senate is taking bows left and right and pretending to be a great, fearless and patriotic investigator of incompetence, greed and graft in the war effort, I should like to point out that this committee has been faking from the very start. It has let the union racketeers strictly alone although they have siphoned off hundreds of million of dollars which the whole people will have to pay through their income taxes and other taxes this year and in years to come. Moreover, whereas excess profits of war contractors are drained back into the treasury, this fabulous loot of the unioneers is free and clear, exempt from all taxes and even from accounting.



Pegler

The Truman committee had John L. Lewis in for a visit a short time ago and you would have thought he was sitting there with a couple of guns, so scared they were of him.

Why didn't they order Lewis to bring in the books of the Mine Workers' union and show them how many millions he has collected and what he has done with the money? Why didn't they slam him up against the wall as so many fearless committees of senators have manhandled businessmen in the past and make him reveal the dictatorial method by which he runs his union, how the officers are elected, who levies assessments and how much money he and his daughter and his brother and his other relatives draw out of the union business in pay and expenses year after year?

Why didn't they send out for Joe Moreschi, the boss of the shakedown union called the Common Laborers, who has his office right there in Washington and show up the foul corruption of this filthy racket operating under a free charter from the New Deal party?

Why didn't they call in Bill Hutcheson, the president of the Carpenters, who has planted his son next in line to succeed him, and put accountants to work on the books of his parent union and the locals and his own accounts? Or old man Franklin, the president of the Boilermakers, who has rounded up victims as Hitler gathers in slaves in the conquered lands and compelled them to pay personal tribute to his son in the form of premiums on the union's compulsory insurance coverage?

Why not Joe Padway, the general counsel of the AFL, who often dictates to congress in the name of labor with an upper-case L although he is only a lawyer grown rich out of union practice in cahoots with the union bosses at the expense of the rank and file? And why didn't they call in Phil Murray, the president of the CIO, once a friend and meek subordinate of Lewis but now his bitter enemy, and make him repeat and elaborate the speech he made to the CIO convention in Boston last winter in which he told of a plot to take his life, called Lewis a Hitlerian despot and a notorious liar and described his methods?

You know why, as well as I. The Truman committee is letting all such rackets strictly alone although it has the power and the opportunity to arouse the whole country with the enormity of the graft taken at public expense, the profiteering in the people's blood and sweat and tears, the persecution and robbery of countless poor devils who do the work, and the slow-down, strikes and waste. Conducted honestly, the Truman committee's investigation of predatory unionism in the war effort alone would have shocked the nation at home and the fighters afloat and overseas into a mood of dangerous rage over their betrayal by the New Deal and the New Deal's party servants in the senate. The house of representatives cannot be included in this criticism. The house has made a decent effort to bring the swollen dictators and the common underworld scoundrels of unionism under legal restraints but all such attempts have been blocked in the senate in servile obedience to the White House.

ON BROADWAY--

By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking for Myself.

I AM becoming convinced, rather belatedly I admit, that Hollywood has an irksome habit of overdoing a good thing. When a musical picture makes a hit, a cycle of musical starts. When a screwball comedy like "It Happened One Night" clicks, every lot from Paramount to Monogram puts a screwball comedy into the oven. A successful "Life of Emile Zola" was enough to set the moguls filming the biography of everyone from Abraham Lincoln to Looey the Gimp.

Kilgallen

The current over-indulgence is war pictures, and I think it is the most serious abuse of the cycle craze to date, because the effect on morale is so shattering. A certain amount of blood and thunder and flag waving was necessary in the early days of the war to get the soft civilian public properly whipped up to a realization of the necessity to pitch in and fight. War pictures were good for recruiting and also for throwing a scare into the optimists who thought it would all be over in six months.

But that usefulness has been outlived, and now with a soldier or several soldiers in virtually every family in the land, and the casualties coming home to the hospitals and "The war department regrets to inform you" telegrams arriving daily in every city and town, the very plurality of battle pictures is harrowing.

A mother who has one son in the Solomons and another waiting to be shipped across the Atlantic doesn't need to put down 99 cents at a box-office window to be reminded that there is a war going on. Neither does a worker in an airplane factory who drops into a local movie house to relax after eight hours on the assembly line. Neither, for that matter does a sailor who is spending his last few hours in port before putting out to sea.

The motion picture industry unquestionably can be the greatest factor in the country for keeping morale high, but it will not accomplish that commendable purpose if men and women come out of theaters as battle-scarred mentally as a veteran of Tunisia or Tobruk.

There is no relaxation value on the sight of a battlefield littered with bodies, in the sight of soldiers sweating in combat, in the sight of planes crashing in flames and battleships sinking in oily water, if you have someone you love in service. And who, now in May, 1943, hasn't?

That war is hell and people are getting killed in it every day has been pretty well established now by the news dispatches. Further corroboration by Hollywood seems unnecessary. But a little comedy, a little dose of song-and-dance escapism seems vital.

Corporal Joe wants to pin Hitler's ears back, certainly. But he wants to pin Betty Grable's picture up, too.

The recent Broadway feud among the dramatic critics seems to have dissolved in a totally unexpected outbreak of good feeling, and I must say I deplore the passing of the aisle-judges' Hatfield-McCoy, because they do it so well.

It was a brisk, enjoyable, fortnight during which handsome John Anderson and the New Yorker's graceful Wolcott Gibbs were arrayed against Burton Rascoe in one of those earth-shaking battles that are raptly followed by all except maybe seven or eight million people of this city.

Superficially, as I recall, the provocation was a column by Mr. Rascoe denouncing Mr. Gibbs. Actually, though, the underlying cause of the deftly-worded friction was undoubtedly the fact that Broadway was having one of its periodic quiet phases during which hardly any new shows opened.

FLOOD, STORM TAKE 10 LIVES IN SOUTHWEST

Parts of Oklahoma Swept By High Water as Tornado Hits Texas Oilfields.

(By United Press)

TULSA, Okla. — At least six persons were reported dead and hundreds were homeless today as surging floodwaters inundated low-lying communities in northeastern and southern sections of Oklahoma.

The latest victims were Mrs. Haddie Uzzell, her two-year-old son, Ralph, and Joe Gardner, a neighbor. They were drowned in a swollen creek near Clayton, Okla. Gardner lost his life trying to rescue the mother and child.

Dozens of rain-swollen streams contributed to waters which swept across thousands of acres of newly-planted farm lands. Twenty-five state highways were partially submerged, virtually stalling traffic in the flooded areas.

In Tulsa and Muskogee counties in the northeast section of the state, waters spilled by the rampaging Grand, Verdigris and Arkansas rivers forced dozens of families to flee their homes.

KILMORE, Tex. — (U.P.) — Four persons were reported dead and 17 injured today in the wake of a tornado which cut a swath through the east Texas oil fields.

Scores of homes, three churches and a crowded school building were leveled yesterday as the twister spun through the world's most productive oil region. Thirty oil derricks were flattened, permitting two wells to flow wild and creating a serious fire hazard.

In the Lone Pine community, Mrs. A. B. Tuttle, her son Joe, 3, and Mrs. John Morris, a neighbor, were killed when the wind demolished the Tuttle home. Thelma Mae French, 4, was crushed to death and her two-year-old brother was injured seriously when their grandmother's house collapsed.

At Leverett's Chapel, the tornado struck the Laired school while more than one hundred children, including five of the Tuttle family were attending classes. The structure was leveled but the children miraculously escaped injury.

PUSH STUDY OF LAKE PROBLEM

Engineers Say Surveying of Perrysville Basement Water Being Speeded.

War department engineers today assured Richland county sportsmen that the study of the flooded basement problem in the Pleasant Hill lake area is being pushed to completion so the lake can be restored to normal.

Engineers at Huntington, W. Va., headquarters for this area, said it will be necessary to keep the lake at the present level until all complaints from Perrysville residents have been checked. The lake level was raised during the winter after petitions protesting the lowering of the lake water were turned over to army engineers.

"This office is fully cognizant of existing conditions in the lake area, and every effort is being made to expedite the completion of our study so that former recreational benefits can be restored in the near future," a War department representative said in a letter to Gordon H. Ensminger, president of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association.

The lake water level was ordered dropped last fall after Perrysville property owners complained that water was seeping into the basements of their homes. It has never been definitely established that the lake was responsible for the seepage, sportsmen said.

FALL INJURIES RESULT FATALLY

GALION — Mrs. Bertha Tillie Reece, 53, resident of Galion since 1913, died today at 8 a. m. in Galion City hospital from complications resulting from a broken leg suffered in a fall Easter morning.

Born in Cleveland, March 18, 1890, she is survived by her husband, Joseph J. Reece; one daughter, Mrs. Esther Williams, Cleveland; one brother, Peter Pryer, Cleveland, and one grandchild.

She was a member of Peace Lutheran church.

The body was taken to the Volk Funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

Up and Down THE STREET

The frequent showers which have drenched the Mansfield area for the past week are delaying farm and garden work, but they have produced colorful blankets of wildflowers in the parks and woodlots in the city area. Hikers have found the showy trilliums at their best since Sunday, and in nearly every wooded lot there are literally millions of purple, white and yellow violets, spring beauties and other wildflowers. Despite the severe winter, fruit trees are showing at least the average amount of bloom and orchardists are hopeful that a late cold snap won't kill the young fruit.

When 10 members of the Girls' Leaders club of Mansfield Senior high school journey to Columbus Saturday to be guests of University high school for a play day program, they will have a chance to renew old acquaintance. Their former physical education instructor, Miss Wilma Snyder, is now employed by the Columbus school as physical education instructor. Girls planning to make the trip are: Betty Pfleiderer, Joan Schmutzler, Marjorie McClure, Marjorie Wentz, Janice Carter, Lucille Chesroun, Betty Morey, Betty Smart, Doris Scisinger and Eudie Smotherman. Miss Lola Stevenson, club instructor will accompany them.

Time rolled back and Mansfielders were confused yesterday and today at receiving letters dated May 1. No, the letter hadn't been lost for 10 days. The trouble was all traced to the cancelling machine. Somehow the machine got out of adjustment and the second number of the date didn't print—a fact which postal employes, rushed as they were, failed to notice. Inquiries from various sources caused them to investigate and discover and quickly remedy the trouble.

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA — True to their promise of a week ago, 700 retailers of live poultry in the Philadelphia area today closed their businesses "for the duration or until OPA cleans up the black market."

The members of the Retail Live Poultry Dealers association complained that approximately four-fifths of the live poultry sent to Philadelphia is bought at black market prices and shipped to New York. Their spokesman said:

"We will stay closed until the black market is driven from Philadelphia and we can resume normal business relationships with wholesalers—until certain wholesalers refuse to deal with New York operators on a black market basis."

Most of the poultry handled by the two groups is for the kosher trade. The poultry dealers complained that New York dealers bid from half a cent to 15 cents a pound over the ceiling price for live chickens, fowl, ducks and geese, thus draining the local market.

LAUDS INDUSTRY FOR MASTERING ITS WAR TASKS

Foremen's Club Speaker Says Conversion One of Mankind's Greatest Achievements.

Industry's record in converting from peace-time production and turning out adequate war supplies for the U. S. forces and our Allies in 18 months will stand as one of mankind's greatest achievements, Capt. A. A. Nichoson of the Texas Oil company, New York, told the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club last night at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Closing its program for the year, the club elected R. C. Snyder of the Ohio Public Service company to succeed Verne Kyle, Tappan Stove company personnel director, as president for 1943-44.

"When peace comes again, you men of industry will have your record in this war inscribed in the nation's history as something to be proud of," Capt. Nichoson said. "Our system of free men and free enterprise has come through with flying colors to prove Hitler and Hirohito were badly mistaken when they said we were getting soft.

"The American people never knew the meaning of surrender. We will fight through this crisis just as we have done at other times while we were building the nation," he continued. "We at home are obliged to stand behind our armed forces no matter how long the war lasts."

Capt. Nichoson, a veteran of the first World war and assistant to the vice president of the Texas company, predicted that the American people will give up many more luxuries before the war is won. The Allied victory in North Africa is just the beginning of the lost battle to defeat the Nazis and Japs, he warned, and the nation's 53,000,000 industrial workers must not relax their efforts to produce the best in arms and supplies.

In their annual election, club members chose John Vrbanac of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, vice president; Richard C. Smith, Tappan Stove company, secretary, and Lewis Cashell of the Hartman Electric Manufacturing company, treasurer.

Elected to the board of control were two Shelby men, Noel Smith of the Shelby Metal Products company and R. D. Pugh of the Shelby Salesbook company, and two Ashlanders, C. H. Willis of the Union Malleable company and Cleve Topper, Faultless Rubber company.

Reporting the club's activities for the year, Vrbanac, who was secretary during the season just closed, said the organization now has 254 members, including 135 in Mansfield, 62 from Ashland, and 57 from Shelby. The members represent 36 industries in the three cities.

VOTE WALKOUT

Akron Unions Plan Holiday Unless They Get Raise.

AKRON —(AP)— The Akron Industrial Union Council, central body for CIO affiliates, has voted a labor holiday June 2 unless the war labor board has by that date approved a panel recommendation for wage increases for rubber workers here.

An eight-cent an hour increase for workers at Firestone, Goodrich, Goodyear and General Tire and Rubber company has been recommended by the WLB rubber panel.

Union leaders said the work stoppage would not be a strike because a clause in contracts with the major rubber companies permits the union to select one day a year for a holiday.

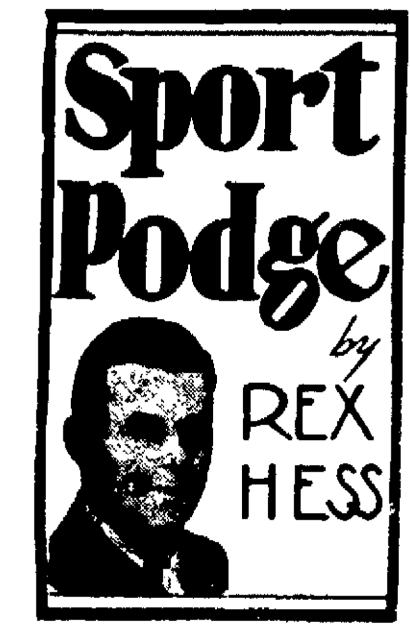
High School Sport Championships Get Under Way



Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Speaking of coincidences.

Except, possibly, in lists of Mansfield sport figures now in service, Bob Parr's name hadn't been mentioned in this column since way last summer when he went into the army.

Sunday that mention was casually referred to in reporting that Parr's softball playing buddie Marvin McKee is now at Great Lakes.

The coincidence? Parr was home from Camp Perry and read the news hot off the press. He tried to call me Sunday morning but I was still in the hay, so he wrote the following letter:

* * *

Dear Rex: I am spending this week-end at home, and I called you and found you were in bed, so I thought I would write a line and leave it at the News-Journal. I read your column every chance I get and I really enjoy it I see in your column today that Bard McKee wondered if he would get his name in the paper when he left.

* * *

He is a swell player, and in my opinion was one of the best outfielders in Mansfield.

I have played on the same team with him for the past three years and I hated to see our team broken up, but don't worry, we will be back some day and take up where we left off.

I am playing baseball this summer instead of softball and boy, it sure is a change. I am playing first base for the Camp Perry nine, and by our three straight victories it looks like we may equal last year's record of having won 27 out of 30 games (21 of them in a row).

In our first game against Oberlin college, Chuck Cronin, former Fostoria manager, combined with the Yankee-owned Steve Mestnik for a no-hitter.

We sure have a swell bunch of players including Alex Clowson, former manager of the Mansfield Braves, Mike Drusbacky a good Yankee-owned shortstop, and a pitcher named Folisius who has seen some service with the St Louis Browns.

* * *

By the way, we also have our own umpire, named Jones, who would have worked in the American association this year if he hadn't been drafted, so you can see we won't be cheated. Ha, ha.

Well Rex, I think I will close now, and eat dinner Tell all the boys I said "Hello" and hope that next summer we will be playing ball in Mansfield

Pfc. Robert Parr,
Hq Sect 1590th S A,
Camp Perry Ohio

P. S—We have games this year with the Toledo Mud Hens and also Ohio State and the Fremont Green Sox so you see we don't have such easy pickings

* * *

A recent news story from Camp Perry referred to the "heavy slugging first baseman, Bob Parr, from Mansfield." So Bob isn't kidding us

4 Teams Enter Baseball Loop

Season Opens May 23 At Two Diamonds.

Organization of the Mansfield Commercial baseball league was completed last night with Yuncker Sports, Mansfield Athletic Supply, East Side Merchants, and American Legion ready for competition.

Physical Director John Fike of the Y. M. C. A. announced a deadline of May 17 for filing of entry fees and eligibility lists, while the season will open Sunday, May 23 at the Fairground and Liberty park.

Collections will be taken to help defray expenses.

A meeting of the Parks softball league has been called at the Y. M. C. A. building tomorrow night, and all park managers are urged to attend. Umpires, who have already been selected, also may attend the session.

Naymick Gets Big Chance

Harder's Broken Ankle Is Break For Mike.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Mel Harder's injury today gave big Mike Naymick his chance to earn a starting role with the Cleveland Indians.

The team's physician announced yesterday the dean of the Indians pitching staff fractured a right ankle bone when he slid into second base in the eighth inning of last Saturday's game at St. Louis. Dr. E B. Castle said the veteran right hander probably would be out of the lineup for two months.

Naymick has been a six-year disappointment but this season he has given indications of acquiring control. The West Virginian has appeared in four games, has pitched 12⅔ innings and has allowed four hits and two runs. He gave up all the hits and runs in a starting assignment against Detroit two weeks ago, but hasn't permitted a batter to reach first in three relief chores.

* * *

The towering right hander came to the Tribe during Oscar Vitt's stormy regime and was considered a physical freak. Vitt encouraged him to kick his left foot high in delivering the pitch, apparently because the crowd enjoyed the exhibition.

Coaches Del Baker and Burt Shotton spent many hours with Mike this spring, and taught him to discard the exaggerated windup and throw normally. His wildness is disappearing and he is finding the plate with a normal degree of consistency

Mike will get his big chance in the series against Washington which opens at Cleveland stadium tomorrow night

FT. MONMOUTH, N. J.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds stopped here today for a twilight exhibition baseball game with a picked team of army all-stars.

For the Reds' first invasion of the east, Philadelphia is the initial port of call. Manager Bill McKechnie will send four-game winner Johnny Vander Meer against the rejuvenated Phillies in the first of a three-game series tomorrow.

* * *

Bucky Harris, Philadelphia maestro, has elected Johnny Podgajany to perform the mound chores for the Shibe park outfit. Johnny was shelled from the firing line his last two trips out but received credit for both victories.

Compile Wire Meet Scores

Bulldogs Beat Fremont, Appleseed Loses.

Scores compiled yesterday of telegraphic meets staged last week by Mansfield's junior high school trackmen showed John Simpson defeated Fremont Ross 65 to 35, while Johnny Appleseed bowed to Clyde 33-67.

* * *

Thomas was high point scorer for Simpson, taking first in the shot put and low hurdles and second in the discus while the Bulldogs took both the relay events.

Appleseed took only four firsts in the Clyde meet, winning the 880 relay, pole vault, discus and 220 yard dash

Track Fans Await Rice-Haegg Duel

GUNDAR HAEGG

GREG RICE

By WALTER L. JOHNS
(Central Press Sports Writer)

How good is J Gregory Rice? Many Americans believe he is the greatest distance runner ever produced in the United States How good is Gunder Haegg? The Swedes believe he is the greatest runner of all time.

The long-awaited answers to these questions will be given soon, for Haegg is en route to the United States to run against Rice in what should be an atraction as great as any in track and field history.

Haegg, a fireman, has left his home at Gaevle for Stockholm and will embark for America via England.

As Al Smith so often said, "let's look at the record."

By the record we find that Haegg has completely outclassed Greg Rice, and all other runners in track history in distances from a mile on up through the 5,000 meters.

The Swedes say that they have two or three men besides Haegg who could beat Rice They point out that these other men have made better time than Rice.

On the American's side, however, track men can come back with the assertion that Rice, undefeated in 60-odd races, hasn't been pressed in any of his most recent efforts and, if pressed he probably could have made faster times. Rice has won many of his two-mile jaunts by plenty of yardage, sometimes lapping his competitors

The Swedes counter that Haegg's record-breaking two-mile time of 8 47 8 set last year not only tops Rice's best two-mile effort but also is better than a composite of Rice's fastest first and second miles. The figure filberts point out that Rice once ran the first mile in 4 25 and once ran the second in 4 23 2 which adds up to 8 48 2 slower than Haegg's time in one race

Not having seen Haegg in action we cannot describe his running tactics Whether he can turn it on like Rice does in the stretch remains to be seen.

Last summer Haegg compiled an amazing record on the cinder paths. He cracked five world records as follows:

* * *

Mile—4:04.6; old mark, 4:06.4, Sid Wooderson.

2 miles—8:47.8; old mark, 8:53.2, Taisto Maki.

1,500 meters—3:45.8; old mark, 3:46.8, Archie San Romani.

3,000 meters—8:01.2; old mark 8:09, Henry Kalarne.

5,000 meters—13:58.2; old mark 14:08.8, Taisto Maki.

(Note: In old marks listed above, some are unofficial marks accepted up to May, 1941, by the I A. A. F.)

Tentative plans call for Haegg to appear in the National A. A. U. championships in New York June 19-20.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—According to the table of performances for the A. A. U. primary physical fitness test, a guy over 35 should be able to run 100 yards in 14.5 seconds and a mile in seven minutes or run and walk a mile in ten minutes. . . . What on an "A" card? . . . A Columbus (O.) newspaper reported there were 500 people in the stands when Beulah park racing began and 5,000 cars in the parking lot. Wonder how the other 4,500 got there?

The National Collegiate A. A. tennis tournament, which was almost allowed to fade out, will be played in Chicago after all. . . . Wiffy Cox, the veteran pro, argues that anyone who has played more than 50 rounds of golf ought to be ashamed to remain in the duffer class.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Wilbur Adams, Sacramento, Calif., Bee: "You can believe it or not, but that Jim Tyack, who has been batting cleanup for the Philadelphia Athletics this year, is the same lad who could not make the 1936 Sacramento team. And not being able to make that club is a shady distinction."

Batting Marks Levelling Off

Weak-Hitting Redlegs Pace National League.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The batting averages in the National and American league have levelled off to something approaching equality in the last week, but the most novel note they revealed today was four members of the so-called weak-hitting Cincinnati Reds among the ten top hitters in the senior circuit.

* * *

Little Lonnie Frey, even with his batting mark shrunken 70 points from the imposing .467 he sported a week ago, continued to lead both Major leagues with .397.

This average by a veteran who ordinarily is under .280 was surprising enough, but hardly more than that his Cincinnati teammates, Frank McCormick, Eric Tipton and Gerald Walker, all were present among the leaders.

McCormick was not among the first ten last week, but he spurted into third place with .353 while Stan Hack of the Chicago Cubs who also was missing from the leaders a week ago, soared into second place with .373. Together they crowded the Phillies' Danny Litwhiler out of the runner-up slot and into a tie with his teammate, Babe Dahlgren, for fourth at .340.

Vernon (Junior) Stephens of the St. Louis Browns remained in front of the American league with .392 as compared with his .418 of last week. Oris Hockett of Cleveland made his first appearance among the weekly leaders and grabbed off second place with .360.

* * *

Mike Higgins, who was runner-up a week ago with .418, slipped to third at .353.

Saints Bump Old Rivals

Last Place Club Beats Minneapolis Millers.

(By Associated Press)

The St. Paul Saints were the proud owners of a two-game winning streak today, and although it was not enough to lift them from last place in the American Association, it knocked their ancient rival Minneapolis, from second to third.

The Saints served notice they can do considerable damage to title contenders while not figuring in the pennant chase themselves. In their last two victories they have run up a total of 21 runs, beating Milwaukee 11 to 3 Sunday and Minneapolis 10 to 2 last night. The revival of plate power in their last two encounters, came after the Apostles had won only one game in nine starts.

The St. Paul-Minneapolis game was the only one permitted by the temperamental weatherman yesterday—Columbus' date at Indianapolis being postponed. Other teams were not scheduled for league play.

Milwaukee's game at Great Lakes was postponed, but the Brewers hoped to get in some exhibition experience today by entertaining the New York Yankees, American league leaders.

Eliminations Start In Spring Tourneys

District A and B Track Teams Come to Mansfield May 22

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—Ohio's biggest sports program—the high school track-field, tennis, golf and baseball district eliminations leading to the May 28-29 state championships—get under way this week.

Hampered somewhat by lack of talent, and by war-occasioned travel restrictions, this season's four-ply district schedule is expected to attract about 15,000 youngsters, instead of the usual 20,000.

Tiltonsville's defending class A baseball champions probably will come back to the state meet without qualifying in district play, Commissioner H. R. Townsend said. The scholastic athletic chief said Tiltonsville, so far as he has been able to ascertain, has the only Class A team in the eastern sector, and thus will qualify automatically. The eastern district diamond tourney originally was scheduled for Friday and Saturday at Bridgeport.

The golf tourney slated May 22 at Bucyrus also has been called off, due to the entry of only three teams. The three have been shifted to the Toledo event scheduled May 21. Townsend said the golf meet booked May 21-22 at Ohio university, Athens, also will be discarded, no golf teams being entered from the southeastern district.

On this week-end's slate are six Class A and six Class B baseball tournaments, and one each in golf, track and tennis.

The track event calls for the central district Class A schools to compete Saturday at Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware; the golf meet Saturday at Cadiz, for eastern district competitors; and the tennis affair Friday and Saturday at Cincinnati.

The Class A baseball competitions are Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Columbus; Friday and Saturday at Canton, Akron, Athens, Miamisburg and Cincinnati. The Class B baseball meets are at Kent, Tiffin, Defiance, Athens, Miamisburg and Cincinnati, all Friday and Saturday.

The districts swing into high gear the week end of May 22 as they name qualifiers for the state competitions at Ohio State university, with meets scheduled on a score of fronts. Sites of the May 22 events are:

* * *

Track: Urichsville, Cleveland, Salem, Chagrin Falls, Braceville, Lorain, Bowling Green, Mansfield, Athens, Springfield and Cincinnati.

Baseball: Columbus, South Euclid, Kent, Toledo, Findlay, Athens Miamisburg and Cincinnati. (Findlay-Toledo winners meet May 24 at Findlay to name qualifier.)

Golf: Columbus, Cadiz, Cleveland, Canton, Toledo, Springfield and Cincinnati.

Tennis: Columbus, Martins Ferry, Cleveland, Akron, Bowling Green, Athens and Springfield.

Defending champions are: Class A track, Cleveland East Tech (four straight years); Class B track, Xenia O. S. & S. O. home (three straight years); baseball, Class A, Tiltonsville; Class B, Reading: Tennis, singles, Cincinnati Hughes (Appel); doubles Martins Ferry (Kadar and Bowen); golf, Sylvania.

The sandy-haired Haegg, who is a village fireman at nearby Gavle, plans to spend a month in the United States

Rest Gives Chance for Trading

Three Clubs [illegible]dding For Lou Novikoff.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

THE major leagues are using the intermission before their first intersectional strife of the season to feel out trade possibilities and the foremost figure in their discussions of deals apparently is Lou Novikoff, the Chicago Cubs' holdout outfielder.

* * *

Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Bruins disclosed under cross examination last night that three other National League clubs—the Cincinnati Reds, New York Giants and Philadelphia Phillies—have made propositions for the Mad Russian.

* * *

The hitch thus far is that the prospective buyers want to spend money instead of talent and Wilson is insisting on a righthanded hitting outfielder in exchange for the colorful clouter who batted an even .300 last year.

Just what rival clubs might be willing to give, or the Cubs take for Novikoff, is a matter for guesswork.

The Giants have offered nothing but cash and the Cubs probably are covetous of Buster Maynard, whom they have little chance of getting. If a player deal should be made with the Reds, Gerald Walker might go to the Cubs.

Brooklyn might get into the bidding. The Dodgers, although leading the National league, are far from satisfied with their performances to date. The team has been in a hitting slump and of its six defeats, five have been by one run and the other by two.

* * *

The lineup for the first intersectional games is:

National league — Chicago at New York, Pittsburgh at Brooklyn (twilight). Cincinnati at Philadelphia, and St. Louis at Boston.

American league—New York at Chicago, Boston at St. Louis Philadelphia at Detroit and Washing on at Cleveland (night.)

Grandma Comes Through Again

(By Central Press)
JOHNNY MURPHY

JOHN JOSEPH MURPHY graduated from Fordham university in 1929 with an A. B. The degree, naturally, was bestowed on Mr. Murphy for having completed his four years of college studies with the required number of academic credits.

It's about time Fordham or the New York Yankees granted Mr. Murphy another degree, an M A., specifically, "master of (pitching) arts."

Murphy, called "Grandma" by the baseball fraternity, is an amazing pitcher. He gets more credit for things he doesn't do than any other flinger in the business. There's a reason why, naturally.

He's supposed to be the workhorse of the Yanks. But the odd thing is, he doesn't do much work, —but still gets results.

Probably the best relief twirler in the majors, Murphy has pitched exactly six and one-third innings this year. As you probably have heard, the big righthander has received credit for winning FOUR games by merely toeing the slab for those few innings.

In less than a month of actual play, the Yankee relief ace has won as many games as he won all last season when he could total but four victories in 31 appearances on the mound in relief roles.

Through the years, though, Murphy has been the strong man behind the pitching throne. When the starting hurlers got into trouble, Marse Joe McCarthy would signal to the Yank bullpen and in would come Murphy to clamp down the enemy rally and, in many times, get credit for a Yankee victory.

With the exception of 1942, Murphy has turned in creditable records each year he has been with the Yanks and he's been with that club for 10 years.

Murphy's professional baseball career began with Scottdale in the Middle-Atlantic league in 1928. Albany in the Eastern league was next and then followed two years with St. Paul in the American Association. After a trial with the Yanks in 1932, the big righthander was sent to Newark of the International league where he remained two more years before the Yanks recalled him in 1934. At Newark, Murphy was used chiefly in relief roles.

In 10 years with the Yanks Murphy has won 77 games and lost 47 prior to this season. He has appeared in five world series engagements, and is listed for two victories and no defeats in the blue ribbon classics.

Big Leagues Facing Crisis

Baseball's Popularity Gets Wartime Test.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Something like a pneumonia patient, 1943 baseball will have to go through a crisis that will spell either life or death. Attendance figures prove almost inconclusively that this crisis will occur during the next two weeks.

No sport in American history has had so many merciful ups and downs at such a dizzying pace as baseball in this season. From a delayed and dismal opening, baseball staggered through such obstacles as the dead ball, bad weather and small crowds to reach an attendance of about 170,000 at the Sunday games of May 2. From there, business at the ball parks took another perilous dive during the week, only to zoom up to about 135,000 last Sunday.

At first, small attendances were blamed on bad weather. Baseball fans, the magnates said, would not risk chilblains and the flu to attend a game held in high winds and cold mist. But, attendance on days that would please the most finicky showed no encouraging increase. Only on Sundays, with the aid of concurrently fine weather, did the fans show up in force.

* * *

Even those who have their fingers on the very pulse of baseball are at a loss as to what to think. The most supportable reason advanced for small attendance is that the draft has knifed out the score of fandom —young men—and war plants, with their justifiable insistence upon full working crews, have gobbled up the rest on weekdays.

The great expenses incurred in running baseball clubs do not permit very small attendances, even when they are swelled by Sunday's throngs. It is apparent to even the most casual observer that baseball will not fold up unless entirely neglected, and this will never happen, but small crowds create a financial barrier that even the most astute owners and presidents of clubs cannot hurdle

The height to which that financial barrier will rise is the crisis through which baseball must pass in the next two weeks. If, by the end of that time the fans still leave the ballyards empty as they have been on weekdays, even the hardiest arguments must bow to the realization that baseball has lost its tremendous hold.

Happily, things are looking up. At the Belmont opening yesterday, only 12,000 attended, compared to the 26,000 that flocked to see the Jamaica curtain-raiser. Horse enthusiasts have been bleating victoriously at baseball's small crowds, but the ODT, and the policeman who enforced the ODT regulations at Belmont yesterday, might prove to be racing's dampener. America's mass of war-jumpy sports fans with money to burn might yet encouragingly support the national pastime.

So, keep your eyes glued on the nation's baseball attendance figures. If you do, you will be witnessing the life or death, at least for the duration, of America's greatest sport.

Hasn't Heard Of Offer For Rams

CHICAGO— (INS) —Elmer Layden, commissioner of professional football, said today that reports Ted Collins, manager of radio star Kate Smith, was negotiating for the purchase of the Cleveland Rams in the National football league had not been brought officially to his attention.

* * *

The league recently gave the Rams permission to suspend operations for 1943 because of wartime difficulties, an important one being that the owners, Lieut. Daniel F. Reeves and Maj. Fred Levy, Jr., are in the armed forces.

* * *

Collins was quoted as saying he had made a proposition to buy the franchise and expected an answer shortly. Should a deal be made, it will have to receive the approval of Layden and the league membership.

Greco Makes Bid For Title

Relies on Punch To Bring Home Crown.

NEW YORK—(INS)—A nimble, quick-triggered boy from Canada —Johnny Greco—is making his bid for the lightweight championship of the world right now. He's not much, according to the experts, but he's confusing these same experts with a punch that should have been born in the Golden age of sports.

* * *

Greco made his debut in New York as a well-touted semi-finalist. There weren't many experts at the Bob Montgomery-Chester Rico star event five months ago who were paying any attention to Greco, who was fighting Bill Speary.

They were absorbed in the main event, which featured what was left of the New York commission's lightweight elimination tournament. But Greco made them all stand up in their seats, including the experts, when he paralyzed Speary with a right hand in the first round.

Greco's fortune then leaped to a new high. Mike Jacobs closed his promotorial tentacles about the Canadian, and Greco was made as a Garden attraction. However, inasmuch as Greco was one of the main features of the Canadian army, Uncle Mike was hampered, and could only present Greco to the fight-hungry mob when the Dominion of Canada and circumstances of war permitted it.

Some bright day before you know it, so to speak, you'll find yourself driving in here to get 4 or 5 spanking, brand new Generals.

Generals . . . with the Top-Quality you used to know so well. Generals with the kind of mileage and comfort and safety that we got so much pleasure out of selling you. And you, so much pleasure out of having on your car.

They'll be even better Quality Generals . . . but they'll be different Generals, too. Different and better in ways that only engineers can dream about. We can only hint . . . rayon . . . nylon . . . and American-Made rubber.

Think of never worrying about blowouts. Of a tire that will keep on running and running and running . . . maybe as long as your car. Of a miraculously light tire body, yet one that is far stronger and not bothered by heat.

When? No one can say just now. But it's good to know that Top-Quality Tires . . . Generals . . . our first love and our last, will be moving out of here some day on your car.

Meanwhile, it seems everybody in town must have decided that this is the place to come for expert advice, dependable recapping (right in our own shop), and where to bring their certificates for new tires.

At least, we're the busiest in our history making new friends and keeping our customers rolling until that General Tire of The Future arrives.
